Cigaret Addict's Diary

People Funny, So Was Payoff

By TERRY HAMMOND,
Q-Day plus six.
People - are - funny day here.

When we first started running the Arthur King program for shedding the cigarette habit a number of friends of mine read it over and said, "this is for me."

They gazed at the 21-day tapering off period and they said "this makes sense. I've tried to quit suddenly and I can't do it."

So now some of them have slipped after quitting only six days ago and it is pretty funny what they are saying.

I ran into one of them just an hour ago. He was smoking.

"You know," he said, "that business of trying to taper off, these things doesn't work at all. It is just prolonged torture."

"THIS IS IT"

"The only way to quit smoking is just to quit suddenly."

"Is that right?" I said.

"You bet," he went on, "you've just got to tell yourself 'this is it, pal, this is the end.'"

"This is very interesting," I answered, "why DON'T you just tell yourself 'this is it, pal, this is the end.'"

"Oh, I'm going to all right," he said, not batting an eye, "but I've got to get this Arthur King business out of my system first."

So I asked him how many cartons it would take him to get Arthur King out of his system and he said, "Well, summer vacation is coming pretty soon and I would not like to spoil it for the family by me quitting smoking, so I guess I'll wait until after that."

"Yes," I said, "I guess you'll have to wait until after that all right, but try not to spoil Christmas."

So much for the weak of will.

STILL ON CURE

But some people who are still on the cure are pretty funny, too.

Yesterday I saw one of them light 10 cigarettes at one time and then stub them out one by one without inhaling so much as a single puff of smoke. He won a $5 bet from me.

That wasn't so funny, but what was funny was that I gave him a cheque to cover the bet.

It was a funny cheque.

MAYOR'S VETO TO STALL 'SECRECY' LAW 30 DAYS

Lists Name Sellers Of Sweep Tickets

EDMONTON (UPI)—An investigation into sweepstake ticket sales in western Canada loomed today following police seizure of records on western ticket sellers.

Inspector C. W. McNichol said the names of all ticket sellers in the four western provinces were seized in a raid. The evidence will go to the RCMP.

Police arrested George Finlayson, 63, who was fined $100 and costs on a charge of distributing lottery tickets.

MAYOR SCURRELL

Legality Questioned Over First Reading

By R. O. MARRION

City council yesterday gave final approval to a bylaw to exclude reporters from committee meetings except by invitation, but Mayor Percy Scurrell promptly used his power of veto for the first time.

Result is that the "secrecy" bylaw must be reconsidered by council after 30 days, unless, in the meantime, council receives and accepts advice that the bylaw wrongly got past first reading two weeks ago.

The bylaw received final approval, 5-4, when Ald. Elmer McEwen neither voted nor withdrew. Not voting is taken as an affirmative vote.

SECURITY DENIED
Chief proponent of the bylaw at the meeting was Ald. Rev. J. L. W. McLean, who denied secrecy or censorship were involved.

The bylaw, he said, would give committees power "to regulate publicity" that ill-timed and perhaps ill-considered publicity would not prejudice city business. It would not mean suppression of news of business done at the council level.

BAR REPORTERS
The bylaw would change an existing provision that reporters can be barred from committee meetings by majority vote, and Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood opened debate by suggesting that the new rule would only embarrass reporters by requiring them to stand waiting for an invitation.

Ald. Arthur Dowell noted that five aldermen had been members of a previous regime and knew exactly what had happened when the press was barred from committee meetings then. (Ald. M. H. Mooney was the only alderman above the centre-line of council seniority who voted for the new bylaw.)

POOR RELATIONS
Public relations between city hall and the public, Ald. Dowell said, had reached a very low ebb, and "since you have been in the chair, Mr. Mayor, relations with the papers and the public have never been at such a high level."

"Certainly they won't be kept at that level if we go into secret, for want of a better word, committee meetings."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay, however, saw an implication that council meeting reporting would leave much to be desired if the press were excluded from committee meetings. He liked to think, he said, that the press would still report council meetings properly.

'SIAMESE TWIN'

And Ald. McLean was confident, he said, that the bylaw wouldn't disturb good relations with the press at all. But he was interested in the similarity of editorial reaction

Bulletin

ISTANBUL (AP)—Turkish armed forces took over the country early today in what was described as a bloodless coup d'etat.

The military issued an announcement promising that free elections would be held and that power would be turned over to the winner.

The seizure of power followed weeks of demonstrations against the strong-arm rule of Premier Menderes.

'U.S. Policies Placing Man on War's Brink'

Gromyko Hits Back

ANDREI GROMYKO

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Russia's charge of spy-aggression against the United States was knocked down in the United Nations Security Council Thursday. Then Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko lashed back with a charge that U.S. policies are placing "mankind on the brink of war."

The 11-member council voted 7-2 against the Soviet contention that U.S. U2 spy flights over Russia constituted aggression. Two countries—Tunisia and Ceylon—abstained.

TONE CHARGES

Earlier Thursday, Gromyko's references to Eisenhower's speech were comparatively mild but he unleashed a full-scale attack later, apparently after receiving instructions from Moscow.

Gromyko was speaking on a compromise resolution introduced by smaller countries—dubbed the "Little Four"—asking the Big Four to resume negotiations on disarmament and other topics listed for consideration at the summit.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

FAULTY car design, as distinct from driver error, kills many people on the highways. So argues a reader on the 2100 block Haultain, Victoria.

"You quote the results of various analyses of insurance companies which place the main responsibilities for deaths upon faulty driver judgment. This is undoubtedly the cause of many accidents in which death is almost inevitable for the driver and the occupants of the car."

"However, recent research has shown that in bona fide ACCIDENTS—and there are such things—at moderate speeds, one must separate the cause of the accident and the cause of death."

"In the majority of cases, the cause of death is faulty design of the car."

"Did it ever occur to you that although a great body of statute law and municipal bylaws impose regulations for our safety in public conveyances, fire regulation, sanitation, electrical services and food and drug supervision, there is literally no law which imposes upon auto manufacturers the obligation to design motor vehicles in accordance with safety regulations?"

"This is surely absurd. It is likewise absurd that a columnist like yourself should fail to include such an obvious factor in automobile accidents in your column on that subject."

(Sorry, However, I have mentioned it in earlier columns.)

"Fortunately two countries, France and Sweden, have passed regulations which resulted in better design, not only of the cars produced in their home markets, but of cars (imported from abroad) for sale in their home markets, since the rules apply to all cars sold in those two countries."

"Here are some of the conditions which must be met..."

"1. Sun visors must be of soft rubber material. This prevents skull fracture when front seat occupants are thrown forward and upward as a result of impact in a collision."

"2. Dashboards must be free of protuberances."

"3. Dashboards must be padded above, and free of ornaments, knobs, etc., on the upper surface."

"4. The brake fluid reservoir must be of plastic, so that lack of fluid can be seen at a glance."

"5. Bumpers, door handles and external ornamentation must not be of a design which creates a hazard for cyclists or pedestrians who might be struck by a vehicle."

"In Sweden, automobile manufacturers have co-operated with the state safety councils in developing safety belts which are readily effective. Cars manufactured in Sweden are equipped with anchor points to which seats belts can be easily attached."

"In most North American cars it is a costly operation to fit belts that are effective, because the floor must be drilled and reinforced anchor points must be welded to the floor below—a costly operation, but one which would be cheap were it done as a matter of course at the factory."

"Another major cause of death is the steering column impaling the chest of the driver. To my knowledge, at least two European cars make this unfortunate event unlikely, one by... putting a flexible universal joint in the column half-way down, and anchoring the upper portion firmly in the dash and scuttle."

"Much safer cars could be made at the cost of deleting a few scraps of tasteless ornamentation from most cars. The manufacturers will answer: 'People won't buy safety.'"

"Perhaps not, but is there not an obligation to provide for it anyway, even if it is not a gimmick one can sell by? And should not those who are concerned with safety be able to provide for it with reasonable convenience and at reasonable cost?"

"Is there any reason why Darwin's theory of the survival of the fittest (in this case the most considerate and intelligent motorists) should be frustrated by the dictates of illogical design and illogical economics in the motor industry?"

"Furthermore, it was once taken for granted that Detroit knew what would sell cars. That easy assumption no longer carries conviction. (Since) about one-quarter of all cars sold in Canada (are) imported, perhaps even safety will be tried as a sales feature."

"In the meantime, I'm pleased to see that Detroit has now joined Hollywood as an institution that has probably seen its best days. It is a fitting denouement, because these two communities have contributed to, fostered and largely originated what is most vulgar in North American life."

Divorce

New Plan Would End Filibuster

OTTAWA (CP)—The leader of the CCF filibuster against divorce bills in the Commons said Thursday he is willing to end it if the government promises to consider some new plan of handling divorce bills at the next session of Parliament.

Frank Howard, Skeena, who almost single-handedly has held up passage of more than 300 divorce bills in the Commons so far this session, made the statement in a speech he recorded here for broadcast in his constituency over radio station CFPR, Prince Rupert, B.C.

The bills have been passed by the Senate, after testimony in each case was heard by the Senate divorce committee. Mr. Howard and some of his CCF colleagues in the Commons object to the Commons passing the bills without thorough examination, and want Parliament to turn its divorce work over to a properly constituted court.

A highly-placed government source told the Canadian Press the government does not intend to propose an alternative method of handling divorce bills.

Refugee Body Issues Call For Helpers

An official of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Committee for World Refugee Year said last night that the organization urgently needs volunteer canvassers for a fund drive next month.

"We have decided that we will conduct a door-to-door canvass for donations in the Greater Victoria area in June, the last month of World Refugee Year," said Mrs. P. van der Goes, deputy chairman.

"We have district managers but we need a great many more canvassers," she said.

Volunteer canvassers may leave their names with the organization by telephoning EV 3-5252.

The fund-raising campaign will continue throughout the month, Mrs. van der Goes said.

Water Bodies Fight Disease

It's Wasteful Not to Dump Waste

WINNIPEG (CP)—A body of water is similar to the human body in that it can fight back against disease or pollution, a consulting biologist said yesterday.

T. W. Beak of Kingston, Ont., described to the 74th annual meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada methods of measuring industrial water pollution.

He defined water pollution as "some artificial change in a body of natural water which detrimentally affects a beneficial use."

As water is used for different purposes, he said, standards of pollution vary. Water which may be polluted for industrial purposes may be quite healthy for bathing.

In an interview Mr. Beak said it is not practical to remove all waste from water. The cost of such an attempt would be prohibitive.

"Water has a natural capacity to absorb waste," Mr. Beak said, "and we must use this capacity. Water is a resource, and if nothing is dumped into it, then the resource is not being used."

"It is a resource which must be used, not abused." Keeping water healthy is to everyone's advantage, he said, and most industries are aware of this.

world, some industries simply cannot avoid pollution. Were pollution forbidden by law, some industries would be forced to close.

"Pollution through sewage technically could be brought to the point where it is no longer a problem, although this can be extremely expensive."

Prices Frozen in Chile To Prevent Profiteering

Relief Supplies Pour In To Quake-Shaken Nation

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—President Jorge Alessandri instituted price controls yesterday to prevent profiteering in quake-devastated south Chile, where more than 5,100 persons were reported dead or missing.

A presidential decree froze prices at the levels prevailing Saturday, the day southern Chile was struck by the first and most devastating of a series of earthquakes and tidal waves.

Relief supplies pouring in from the United States and various Latin American countries were easing serious shortages of food and medicines in the earthquake zone, but conditions still were critical in some areas because of disrupted communications.

Railroads were operating only as far south as Concepcion, near the northern limit of the disaster area, and wire communications had been restored only as far as Temuco, 125 miles farther south.

Quakes along the coast on a line stretching about 1,200 miles south from Concepcion were changing the face of Chile.

Bad weather and inadequate airstrips made air supply difficult, but U.S. embassy planes did succeed yesterday in reaching Concepcion and Valdivia with loads of relief supplies.

Recurrent earth tremors and tidal waves were reported in the disaster area yesterday, but the only new casualties reported were 20 seamen lost in the sinking of a tug.

Eruptions of varying force were reported from at least nine volcanoes in the southern mountains—two of them formed this week—but no casualties were anticipated.

Reports of a "cataclysmic" earthquake near Chile's southern tip inspired tidal-wave alerts in Hawaii, New Zealand and Australia. A check indicated, however, the effects of the after-shock probably would be purely local.

A compilation of reports from various communities affected by the disaster placed the known toll so far at 5,125 persons dead or missing.

Green Lands In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Canadian foreign minister Howard Green arrived here from Buenos Aires yesterday for a 24-hour visit.

"I am deeply impressed by the courage and integrity of the Chilean people in the face of the catastrophe," Green told newsmen. "I am sure that Chile can count upon the sympathy and aid of all nations of the world."

Preliminary Donation

Canada Giving $10,000 To Aid Quake Victims

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has made a preliminary contribution of $10,000 to the Red Cross international relief fund for aid to victims of the Chilean earthquakes. Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced Thursday.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadian Pacific Airlines has offered all available cargo space on its airliners flying between Canada and Chile for transportation of Red Cross relief supplies.

Wreckage gives some idea of the shocks of the earthquakes which swept Chile, killing thousands.

Agencies Told To Justify Existence

VANCOUVER (CP)—The campaign chairman of this year's Community Chest drive here has asked each of the chest's 64 member agencies to justify its existence.

Gordon Gibson told a meeting Wednesday night he has asked for 150-word statements from each agency explaining what it has accomplished with the money it got from the chest last year.

He said the Community Chest should have a two-door policy—one door to let in new and deserving agencies and another to let out agencies that have outlived their purpose or could get along on their own.

The YMCA is one agency that could now support itself without Chest grants, he said.

Fears Cut in Grants

San Francisco Seeks People To Boost Its Census Count

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The city of San Francisco mobilized its firemen, bus drivers, librarians, school teachers and water department yesterday in an all-out effort to keep its census count from falling below its 1950 population.

Mayor George Christopher said he was afraid that if the city's total from the last census of 775,357 declines, San Francisco would suffer a cut in federal and state aid and lose seats in the legislature.

As a result, Christopher has turned the city government into a vast missing-persons bureau.

To find persons not yet counted by the census takers, firemen went door-to-door, bus drivers were to pass out reminders, the water department was to mail similar slips, and teachers and librarians handed out mimeographed census forms.

Mayor's Veto Stalls 'Secrecy' Bylaw

Park concession lease to be transferred.)

When the vote was called, Aldermen Mooney, Mrs. Lily Wilson, Ramsay and McLean voted aye.

Ald. McEwen, who had spoken against the bylaw at the previous meeting, but voted for it, he later said, so that it could be discussed, raised both hands between the eyes and the nays and smiled, briefly.

But he didn't vote nay, either.

HOLD IT UP

"It's my intention to hold it up for 30 days," Mayor Scurrah announced. "In other words, I'm going to veto it, and return it for reconsideration at the end of 30 days."

Ald. Mooney suggested a full council should be present at reconsideration, and the mayor said council could make that decision at the time.

Meanwhile, council will seek the opinion of the minister of municipal affairs on whether or not the bylaw was validly taken past second reading at the last meeting on a simple majority vote.

The city's procedure bylaw requires a two-thirds vote at second reading, but City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady said that in his opinion this provision, in relation to the procedure bylaw itself, was ultra vires—beyond the powers of council—and should be ignored.

But he admitted some doubts and suggested council might want to obtain another legal opinion.

The Swiftsure Classic

GROWING each year to larger proportions, the Swiftsure yacht race will see some 46 entries cross the starting line off Brodie Ledge at the harbor mouth at 9 a.m. tomorrow. The ocean classic of the Pacific northwest, the Swiftsure is a 136-mile course west along the Strait of Juan de Fuca to the lightship at its entrance and return to the starting point at Victoria harbor. From its inception the race has drawn the interest of yachtsmen along the Pacific Coast as far south as San Francisco (which has its own event) for the sporting nature of the course and variety of sailing conditions throughout its length. The Swiftsure is a test of good seamanship.

This year Victoria will have especial interest in the contest. Lalanga II, handled by Mr. R. V. James, will be making its first bid for the trophy. The Royal Canadian Navy's Oriole, heavily handicapped, will be in there once more; and the Aida, owned by Mr. Hunter Vogel, formerly of this city, will enter a first challenge. Of special interest also this year is the large and representative attendance being made by Vancouver yachtsmen, many of them for the first time in the Swiftsure classic. All in all, half a dozen yacht clubs are preparing entries, and the handicappers may have a busy time.

The pre-race reunion will take place this evening at the Inner Harbor, with a welcome from Mayor Scurrah, the introduction of visiting skippers, and Victoria's trim sundown ceremony at the Legislative Buildings with a guard supplied by the RCN, attended by the Naden band. Participating yachts entered for the race spread through a considerable range of sailing craft, balanced by their official starting ratings. Seattle, Bellingham, Tacoma have taken a keen interest in the Swiftsure since its inception and will be well represented this time. With 46 probable starts, it should be an exciting race, given the fulfilment of the yachtsman's prayer for a wind and no calms.

The start off Dallas Road on Saturday morning should be a sight to be remembered, and may be seen from a wide front along the shoreline.

Pageantry at Work Point

MILITARY pageantry will be to the fore this afternoon at Work Point Barracks when the 1st Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry enacts the ceremony of "Trooping the Color." It will be an occasion reminiscent of the scene at Beacon Hill Park last summer when the Patricia's paraded in superb performance before their Queen. The Color to be trooped today is that presented to the battalion by Her Majesty last year.

Trooping the Color is an ancient custom associated with infantry regiments. Nowadays it is a spectacular parade demonstrating the elan and drill precision of a regiment, but once it was the rallying point of men in battle. Colors were carried into the fray, and in the hand-to-hand combats of those older battles it was essential that soldiers knew and could readily identify their regimental flag. The Color was therefore trooped through the ranks for every man to note and recognize.

Colors do not accompany soldiers into battle nowadays, but this ancient ceremony still is a rallying point for a regiment. It is a test, for one thing, of the regiment's style and bearing, and for another an occasion of pride in the regiment's record of achievement. The now famous PPCLI is a young regiment as military units go but it has a half-century of stern experience in three wars, two of them the greatest the world has witnessed, and its Color is studded with battle honors. It constitutes one of the elite units of the regular Canadian Army.

Victorians who have seen the Patricia's in public parade know that well, and this afternoon's performance will be a renewal of former exhibitions of military precision. Rear-Admiral H. S. Rayner, RCN, soon to be the naval chief of staff, will take the salute. In the parlance of the line, this is the stuff to give the troops.

On Equal Footing

OBVIOUSLY it was with some reluctance that the British Columbia government took action this week to proclaim the Trading Stamp Act of the last session effective on and after June 15. Unlike socialist administrations which are eager to regulate anything and everything, governments subscribing to the principles of free enterprise and competition prefer not to interfere in matters of trade practice without good cause; and good cause is usually interpreted as the interests of the consumers.

In this matter of trading stamps and similar devices to promote business by methods unconnected with the quality of goods sold it is unlikely that the B.C. government would have intervened if it had been a simple case of competition among rivals. What mainly influenced the submission and passage of the Trading Stamp Act undoubtedly was the strong body of public opinion in opposition to sales promotion schemes for which consumers ultimately might have to pay. In this the government and the legislature followed the recommendations of a special committee of the House which investigated and held hearings on all such practices.

The government has acted wisely and in the public interest in putting the act into effect, and in allowing three weeks' grace. That will give the operators of the only promotion scheme affected by the ban sufficient opportunity to wind up the distribution of cards and the payment of bonuses. From June 15 onward all chain stores, super markets and merchants generally will be on equal footing so far as that type of promotion is concerned. Surely no one can raise legitimate complaint against that.

Interpreting the News

Out of the Limelight

By PHIL NEWSON

A MAN once powerful in world councils sits virtually ignored today. Scarcely a better example of a changing world could be found than Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of Nationalist China. Seventeen years ago another big four had for its membership the United States, Britain, Russia and Nationalist China.

France, prostrate then, has taken China's place today and the Generalissimo finds himself out of step with the times. While East and West seek some form of co-existence, Chiang Kai-shek clings to his belief that darkness over the world can be lifted only by the total elimination of Communism.

In 1943, Chiang helped the late President Roosevelt and former Prime Minister Winston Churchill draft Allied goals in Asia in the Second World War.

Today, among the big four, only the United States and France recognize Chiang's Kuomintang administration as China's legal government.

Now, as world leaders talk of peace, Chiang's navy and Quemoy garrison are under a new emergency alert against a surprise attack from Communist China.

As in the summer of 1958, Chiang's aides are issuing new warnings of a Communist military buildup on the Chinese mainland. They claim the Reds are moving super-sonic Mig 19's, jet bombers into the Formosa Strait area.

In Quemoy, the Reds have an almost fool-proof sanctuary for igniting world tensions. They can shell the offshore islands with an impunity based on the expectation that the United States will not retaliate, and that the Nationalists will not bomb mainland China bases.

Any such attack on Quemoy probably would be for propaganda reasons, without any real attempt to seize the islands.

Nationalist military sources say privately the offshore islands, less than a mile from the Chinese mainland, are of little if any tactical value to the Reds.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sailing wax—of cabbages and kings."

IT has been mentioned in this space before that the blood royal has ramifications enough to make one's head reel. Lesser folk actually have the same bewildering lineage, only they don't keep such meticulous track of it. They are thus spared the study of roots which go back to Old King Cole and Babylonia and the memory work involved in getting pat all the forty-second cousins in existence. A youthful prince must have a frightful chore mastering his genealogy; more tiring I should think than mathematics or Euclid.

Normally of course there are pur-suant heralds and chaps like that who keep the records to which doubtless members of the blood royal repair for information. Even a royal head can contain only so much kingly lore at any one time. It needs reference books.

These books, I am now become aware, include the lineage of Mr. Anthony Armstrong-Jones, who is incorporated in the blood royal—who knows but to his surprise—not only by virtue of his marriage to Princess Margaret but by his own antecedents. I would lief leave the lad alone to enjoy his honeymoon and this is not meant to intrude on his privacy, but the fact is that a Sidney reader sent me Mr. Armstrong-Jones' family tree, or at least that part of it in context, and I thought I would pass the information along.

Mr. Armstrong-Jones can claim descent from an early Welsh chieftain, Collwyn ap Tagnio, from whom descends also his bride, Princess Margaret. The consanguinity, however, as you can see, is so diluted as to be negligible, unlike the fears of the church elder in The Bridal Path film. Mr. Armstrong-Jones is also linked by genealogical chart to Llewelyn the Great.

This discovery was made by the assistant editor of Debut's Peerage, who went to work after the royal engagement was announced and who often sat up until four in the morning tracing the multitudinous deviations of the blood royal and kindred lines. He was duly rewarded for his devotion by the interesting chart he was able to produce.

Mr. Armstrong-Jones, it seems, has a double heritage impinging on the blood royal. His Welsh ancestry, embracing the original "Men of Harlech" and the aforesaid Collwyn ap Tagnio, is one side of his descent. Another, through feminine lines, takes him back via the Stanleys and various Knights of the Garter to the House of Plantagenet and King Edward I. He is thus a Commoner of no mean distinction, you see.

Princess Margaret's link with her husband's ancestry is by way of Mary, Queen of Scots, the Tudors and so on to the ancient princes of Wales. Apparently the Queen Mother through her mother's family also is linked to her son-in-law, a common ancestor being the wife of a Tudor squire. This is a very simplified version of these royal connections but if you saw the chart which lies before me you might sympathize with my attempt to unravel all the interlocking details.

Incidentally, although having nothing to do with the subject but rather as a refreshing closure to matters royal, I have come across the reaction of the Queen Mother to malicious reports that she was contemplating marriage. The news dispatches, you will remember, carried her emphatic denial in terms of "complete and absolute nonsense." These words were quoted by the press officer of the royal tour in Northern Rhodesia, where the Queen Mother is at present. Actually, said the press officer, "Her Majesty used a stronger word."

How delightful it would be to know what the Queen Mother really said!

Summit Sabotage...

'By Deliberate Decision in Moscow'

By W. N. EWER, from Paris

THE Paris meeting has been the most fantastic I have ever had to report—and my experience goes back some 40 years.

There can now I think be no doubt that Mr. Khrushchev came to Paris not to negotiate, not to attend the long-awaited summit, but to prevent it. Why?

I do not believe myself that this was a sudden decision, the result of Soviet anger at the affair of the U-2.

I believe the turning point came well before Captain Powers' plane was brought down at Sverdlovsk on May 1. It came with Mr. Khrushchev's speech at Baku in April.

When I read the passages of that speech which dealt with Berlin I at once interpreted them to mean that, for whatever reason, the Soviet leaders had decided they no longer wished for a summit, at any rate for the present.

May I add a personal touch, to show that this is not hindsight? I at once made a small bet with a colleague that there would be no summit in May. And I have, unhappily, won my bet. It was, let me repeat, made several days before the "Sverdlovsk incident."

Why did I make it? Consider the Baku speech. In it, Mr. Khrushchev reverted sharply to a position very close to that of his "ultimatum" of November, 1958. He gave warning that, unless the Western allies accepted a Berlin settlement which would include the "liquidation" of their occupation of West Berlin, the Soviet government would make a treaty with East Germany; and that this would annul all the rights of the United States, the United Kingdom and France to keep troops in West Berlin, or to have guaranteed communication with the city.

The purpose of this seemed to me only too obvious. President Eisenhower had said that he would not come to a "summit" under this sort of threat. Now the threat was repeated. The calculation surely must have been that the president would react by refusing to come to Paris unless it was withdrawn. But the president refused to be provoked. He declined to take serious notice of the speech or to regard it as a new "ultimatum."

That move had failed. But then came a new opportunity, provided by the unhappy episode of the U-2. It was at once exploited to the full.

The normal procedure if the Soviet government felt, as well it might, that it had a genuine cause for complaint would have been to register an immediate and strong protest with the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, or through the Soviet Embassy in Washington. An effort would be made to clear up an unfortunate business before it would affect the prospects for the summit.

But this was not done. Even the fact that an American plane had been brought down over Soviet territory was kept secret until it would be revealed by Mr. Khrushchev himself in his speech to the Supreme Soviet on May 5. That speech and the second one two days later seemed to me—like the Baku speech—designed to provoke the president into declining to come to Paris; or to arouse such anger in the United States that it would be impossible for him to come.

There were charges of "aggression," of "piracy," of "banditry." There were the sneering references to the president's functions as commander-in-chief. There was the likening of the vice-president to a "goat in a cabbage patch." All language rarely used by a head of government.

In spite of it all, President Eisenhower did come to Paris. President de Gaulle as host called the first session of the summit as arranged for the morning of May 16.

Then followed the fantastic drama of these days in Paris... the last-minute Soviet demand for the postponement of the meeting... the demand that before the summit could meet the president must accept conditions so humiliating that they made rejection certain... the trip into the country which broke all contact during critical hours... the brusque telephone messages while the other three heads of state and government waited. Lastly that fantastic press conference, of which no journalist can remember the like.

For those who have been watching from the side lines, these days have a nightmarish quality. It was hard to believe that such things were really happening. They seemed hard to explain on any rational basis.

But an explanation is, I think, to be found. It is that Mr. Khrushchev's behavior in Paris was not the result of the U-2 affair. How could it be when he himself told us in his press conference that he already knew at Camp David that United States planes were making "espionage" overflights of Soviet territory?

It was the result of a deliberate decision already taken in Moscow that by one means or another the summit must be prevented from taking place.

Why there should have been such a decision is, at the moment, beyond guessing. But it is worth remembering that this is not the first time. In the spring of 1958 Mr. Khrushchev put a sudden stop to the talks which were going on in Moscow in preparation for a top-level meeting that summer. Later that year he agreed to another such meeting in New York to deal with the Middle East crisis. Suddenly and without explanation he withdrew and flew off to Peking instead.

Now he has prevented a summit for the third time. But "why" is, at the moment, still beyond guessing. Events may provide a clue.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

MODERN symphonic music as well as serious modern music composed for violin, piano and other solo instruments is highly popular with the professional musicians.

Why? "Because," confessed a professional violinist of my acquaintance, "if you goof, who knows?"

In the atonal jangle, tangle and discord of music by the modern masters nobody, not the conductor, not even the musician sitting next to you in the orchestra, and certainly not the poor audience sitting out there stunned fifty yards away, could tell if you hit not only the wrong note but a really sour one, since most of them are sour anyway.

Modern music is right in line with the times. Mass production has made it possible for very second-rate mechanics to earn big money lounging on the production line slamming nuts and bolts together and slapping components more or less into place.

Why should music be bound any longer by those laws of harmony, rhythm and structure which, like the laws of conscientious workmanship in industry, were the characteristics of things long past?

Who knows if you goof? Who cares?

Experts on Obscenity

(From The Toronto Globe and Mail)

ATTORNEY-GENERAL Kelso Roberts has named a four-man "panel of experts" to rule on obscenity in print, with the Periodical Distributors of Canada co-operating. Presumably, if the panel says a piece of writing is obscene, out it goes—unless somebody involved disagrees and goes to court (which anyone already could do in pre-panel days).

Beguiled as we are with this symptom of progress, we are a bit hazy on one or two points. It may be the schoolboy in us, but how does one become an expert on obscenity? Does he take a course, and if so, is it empirical or spectatorial? Does a librarian canvass the shelves of libraries for specimens? Does a lawyer study case law of judicial findings, and how does he sort them out, since the courts themselves are famous for their disagreements on identical works?

Again, will there be one course for the country and another for the city? An outhouse with its implications, for example, is a routine necessity on the back concessions but might revolt the purist if he encountered it on Yonge Street. Likewise, the birds and the bees and other processes of nature are everyday discussion on the farm; would the panel pass them for the family bookshelf?

The panel, we are told in the announcement, will not go looking for obscenity—"Only if the public provides the material will the panel be able to function." But how will the public know without first reading the exhibit? Won't the harm be done in the process of harm prevention?

Incidentally, the public, through its elected representatives, "provided the material" in such places as York Township. What has a government, bent on cleaning up dirt, been doing therabouts? It would be improper to use its power to interfere with what is the responsibility of citizens, said Queen's Park. How does it equate this bashfulness with its censorship of public tastes?

It has buried Judge Joseph Sweet's report in its files. What will it do with the books adjudged obscene? Surely not burn them, Hitler style? Perhaps the experts in obscenity could set up a Forbidden Library.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

"If you had your life to live over again," the prominent nonagenarian was asked by reporters, "do you think you'd make the same mistakes again?"

"Certainly," the old man said, "but I'd start sooner."

The father of a teen-age girl, never able to reach his home on the telephone, finally had a second one installed just for his daughter. He came home that evening to find the young lady with her feet propped on the desk, chatting away on his phone as usual.

"Hey," he demanded, "What's the idea of still using my phone?"

"For heaven's sake, Dad," snapped the girl, "somebody may be trying to get me on mine."

Letters to the Editor

People Before Dogs

In reply to the letter by Mr. P. Wilkinson of the SPCA regarding his society's opposition to a general leash law in Saanich, I would like to say something on behalf of people, not dogs.

If this correspondent had ever tried to take children for a walk in Saanich and had dogs chasing the buggy and frightening the children, or tried taking them to a park or playground only to find it overrun with fighting dogs, he might perhaps have more interest in the effect on people of dogs running loose.

The only satisfaction one gets from the dog catcher is that one man alone can do nothing about the hundreds of complaints about dogs he receives. The obvious solution then is a law prohibiting dogs running loose. I for one sincerely hope our council passes it soon.

Wrong-Headed 'Progress'

It is astonishing to see how wrongheaded and mistaken our public authorities can be in their efforts to attract tourists to the city.

Victoria has long had an enviable reputation for its beautiful sea coast, its fine gardens and rich country-side, and above all for its peaceful atmosphere and quiet streets. It is these which have attracted both visitors who desire a restful two or three weeks holiday, and also those permanent residents, often well-to-do people who pay a considerable share of the taxes and are the constant year-long support of the business section of the community. Moreover it is just this atmosphere of quiet and stability, unique among western cities which has drawn the more transient tourists to spend a few days here; and it is this which is being rapidly and irreparably destroyed by the multiplicity of close-packed apartment blocks and half empty motels, the noise of trucks on the road and speed boats on the water, and the proliferation on every possible spot of the ridiculous "Another Project" signboards.

No doubt it is too late in the day to attempt to check this sort of "progress," but we may as well recognize that no amount of "right life" and "dance facilities" will persuade the tourists to linger in Victoria. It will be too like the home town from which they have escaped. Mr. Lane complains that the average stay of our visitors is two days. It is a safe guess that it will soon be one day.

Nature's Way Best

My experiment with Mr. House's pheasant egg ended in a failure and the pheasant chick that was so kindly given to me by Mrs. Adams only lived for a day and a half after I picked it up.

I now realize that Mother Nature does a better job than I can do, but I wish to thank most sincerely all the kind people who wrote, phoned and wished me success in trying to hatch my egg and raise my chick.

I had a lot of fun in trying and I have learned a great deal in the last month.

BCE Tells Esquimalt:

End to Bus Service In Our Agreement

Esquimalt council had originally agreed with a B.C. Electric Company's proviso that the extension of the Colville-Munro bus service would be dropped after a trial period if it was poorly patronized, a company spokesman said last night.

He was commenting on criticism levelled at the B.C. Electric by Esquimalt Councillor G. K. Sammon earlier this week. Coun. Sammon said the company should be reminded it's a public utility and had a duty to provide a full transportation service. He labelled the company's attitude in discontinuing the service from Sunday as "arbitrary."

Esquimalt council had originally asked that the service be extended and agreed to a company plan that there be a 60-day trial period to check on the patronage, the spokesman said.

"The council agreed that at the end of this period sufficient traffic did not develop to warrant the extension, then it would be discontinued," said the B.C. Electric official.

"The company actually continued operating the extension for more than a month beyond the trial period in the hope that traffic might pick up."

When it did not, the company had no other alternative but to revert back to the original route as from this Sunday.

"The extension to Parklands, which was put in at the same time on a similar trial basis has not developed the full volume of traffic which was anticipated," the spokesman added. "However the company has agreed to continue it for the time being."

Boers' Great Trek Started 'Chosen-People Complex'

History, Theology Keys To Understanding Africa

Rev. Dr. Frank S. Morley, regular columnist in the Colonist, is touring South Africa to see for himself the racial situation there. This is the second article in the series.

By DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

In a grubby little house on a back street of London, I went down a narrow stairway into two miserable basement rooms, where I found the headquarters of the African Congress. Some white women were busily sorting out bundles of literature. Two African men took me in hand and agreed to answer my questions. One was Magisi Kunene, member of the congress, in exile.

"How do you account for the apartheid policy of the South African government?" I asked Kunene. He replied quickly and contemptuously: "A chosen-people complex. They got it in the Great Trek."

'Take the Trek'

Kunene thus underlined the fact that a knowledge of history and theology is imperative to understand South Africa just as it is to understand Ireland, the Mormons and the Jews. Almost every one I have met in South Africa begins, "Now, to understand our situation you've got to understand our history. Take the Great Trek."

In Pretoria, the enormous Voortrekker monument dominates the countryside from a great hill. Pretoria itself is named after Pretorius, hero of Blood River, where in 1838 the Zulus suffered overwhelming defeat. Here is the heart of South African history.

People of Destiny

Reverently, with obvious emotion, an authority on African culture explained the symbolism. A frieze of 17 panels encircles the interior, describing the astonishing pilgrimage from the Cape in 1836, surviving treachery and massacre, brutal hardships, until finally they settled in the Promised Land and achieved victory. Then, with a sense of being a people of destiny, they made a solemn covenant with God.

The land was then possessed by the Hottentots and Bushmen, who have almost been exterminated by the two invaders, Bantus and Boers, both of whom arrived about the same time.

Kaffir Wars

Innumerable Kaffir wars followed. "Kaffir" is an Arabic word meaning "heathen" and is much disliked by the Africans. These took place as late as 1893, 1896, and 1906. Sir de Villiers Graaf, leader of the opposition, told me in Capetown that a primary factor in political life was the fact that every member now in the House had a relative who had been killed in Kaffir wars. When things got difficult with the natives, the old fears rose easily.

Moreover tribal warfare was a normal condition. Peace was unknown until recently under white rule. Indians and Africans also hate one another. In 1949 a bloody riot took place which would have destroyed the Indians had the government not made strong intervention. Indians are sharp traders and Bantus claim they have been exploited.

Slavery Ban

Another historically important fact is that the Great Trek was caused in part by the prohibition of slavery by Great Britain. Also the Great Trek established a tradition of persecution and desperate fight for survival. It gave the Afrikaner a severe inferiority complex which is increased by the poverty of the country economically. Here are no great river beds, no rich, black lands, but large stretches of arid, empty land. Without gold—a wasting asset—and diamonds, the country would be fearfully poor. Now the English dominate about 85 per cent of the economy while the Afrikaner dominates politically.

Critics allege that for one Nationalist Party history ceased with the Boer War. In Bloemfontein the National Women's Monument commemorates 26,370 Afrikaner women and children who died

PIRATE GOLD IN OUR DOLLAR'S FAMILY TREE

No one knows for sure, but our modern dollar sign, $, is believed to have originated with the figure 8 stamped on "pieces of eight" which Long John Silver and others of his breed coveted as they scoured the seas in bygone days. Whether this is a tall tale or a true one, we do know that the $ sign was in use in the United States before the introduction of federal currency and before our own decimal monetary system began in 1853. But more interesting to most of us than the $ sign itself are the figures that come after it, especially if those figures are

Green Probes America Link

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Green said, referring to joining the OAS—the world's oldest international organization and which includes every American nation except Canada. Canadian membership in the OAS has come up for active speculation off and on during the past quarter century.

The Canadian cabinet minister added that if Canada should join the OAS, it would not affect his country's status in the British Commonwealth. He noted that Canada already was a member of several OAS subsidiary organizations.

Green, first Canadian foreign minister ever to visit Argentina, came here to head his country's delegation to Argentina's celebration of its fiftieth anniversary of independence.

But he also conceded that he wanted to find out for himself on this trip what could be done to strengthen Canadian relations with Latin nations.

"It would be a big move and a complicated process," relations with Latin nations.

517,000 Out of Work Normal, Says Starr

OTTAWA (UPI)—Labor Minister Michael Starr took a look at the official figures yesterday and concluded the 517,000 Canadians unemployed by mid-April was "normal."

Starr told the Commons that 12 per cent of the jobless had been out of work for more than six months, while another 36.9 per cent were in the four-to-six month category. This was normal for the past eight years, he said.

Starr gave the comment in reply to a question by Lionel

Chevrier as to what plans the government had to meet "this very serious problem." Chevrier, drawing other figures from the same government survey, said that almost the same percentage of workers were jobless this year as there were at the height of the 1958 recession.

Starr also disclosed that some 228,000 Canadians were listed as live claimants for seasonal unemployment insurance benefits when they expired May 21.

Police, Fire Pay Disputes

Arbitration by Judge City Plan to UBCM

Arbitration by a judge or a board headed by a judge in future wage disputes with policemen and firemen will be sought through the Union of B.C. Municipalities by city council.

This year, a three-man conciliation board gave city police and firemen an 11-per-cent wage increase in a majority award which is binding under terms of the Municipal Act. The award increased council opposition to this conciliation-board system.

Although Ald. Elmer McEwen urged that council return to man-to-man negotiation with employees instead, council approved an inter-municipal committee recommendation that UBCM action be sought with a view to securing the arbitration-board system.

Its resolution held that conciliation boards were designed only to conciliate, that arbitration board decisions would be based on fairness rather than compromise, and that a judge would be best able to relate fairness to the facts in evidence.

It proposed seeking provision for appointment of arbitration boards headed by supreme or county court judges, or for arbitration by judges, or for establishment of permanent boards headed by judges for separate areas of the province.

Scott Gives Council Unrequested Encore

Second-hand dealer William Scott caused another scene in city council yesterday.

This time he didn't sing from "The Mikado," as he did at the last meeting when he wanted to discuss with council his claims that he was unfairly arrested and that the city prosecutor and city solicitor shouldn't be the same person.

But one of the results was the same: a constable was called to eject him if deemed necessary.

This time he appeared in connection with a letter addressed to the mayor and aldermen by J. P. Kibsgaard, concerning police actions, which wasn't on the agenda because city clerk M. F. Hunter had suggested it be redirected to the police chief or commissioner.

Almost as soon as Mr. Scott rose to ask for information, Mayor Percy Scurrell told him, "Now, Mr. Scott, we don't want to listen to you."

When his own brief of the previous week was read, received and filed later in the meeting, after Ald. Arthur Dowell had observed that Mr. Scott's only recourse apparently would be against the man who arrested him, he demanded, "Lay a charge against the Queen?"

Fodor's 'The Vigil'

Ambitious City Company Produces Unusual Play

By BERT BINNY
The Fireside Theatre of Metropolitan United Church are to be congratulated for their production of Ladislav Fodor's "The Vigil" which opened last night and will be presented again this evening.

This is not to say that the production from the theatrical standpoint was impeccable but the fact remains that a play of this particular type has not been attempted here for a very long time. "Amahl and the Night Visitors" was, after all, opera.

"The Vigil" employs a cast of 25, Gordon Courtenay made

Duncan Firm Wins Project

DUNCAN — A city builder has been awarded the contract to build the Duncan Kiwanis Village for elderly citizens, possibly starting next month.

Directors awarded it to William Burak & Co. with a tender of $54,930—one of six received.

Three were higher and two lower, but the directors passed a motion "that in view of the small difference between local and outside tenders, be it resolved that local tender be accepted to create employment for local residents."

It was the lowest of three local tenders.

a good prosecuting counsel; Laura Butler, as the defence counsel, was outstanding in her sympathetic passages.

Of the 13 "witnesses" Robert Baird as Saul of Tarsus played excellently. Sylvia Mobey was convincing as Natalie Pinch and Linda Wolfe as "Susanna." Bernice Pluym's "Claudia" was open to doubt on the score of age represented but she created a definite character as did Geoff Castle as Pontius Pilate.

The overall tempo was too slow and unvaried. "The Vigil" is a very static play indeed, relying for all its effect on characterization, dynamic change and inflections. Thus it is of the greatest value for the players to examine their lines to determine how they reflect character just as much as to determine how they forward the action. This did not seem to have been done in every case.

"The Vigil" was directed by Ralph Kendal who also played two parts with welcome vigor and skill.

Abominable Snowman Will Get Reprieve

MONTREAL (CP) — The legendary "abominable snowman" may exist, King Mahendra of Nepal said Thursday.

Speaking at a press conference through his deputy premier, S. W. J. Rana, the young monarch said the giant, ape-like creature, whose footprints in the Nepalese snows have been reported by scientist-explorers from both sides of the Iron Curtain, may be a species of mammoth bear.

He said Nepalese folklore describes a monstrous creature inhabiting the snow-capped mountain fastness. Religious Hindus, he said, believe it may be an immortal snow god while others think it's just a myth.

The king said Nepal has declared a closed season as far as hunting the abominable snowman is concerned, for religious reasons.

Tibetan Trio Tops Everest

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Three Chinese mountain climbers have reached the summit of Mount Everest, the highest peak in the world, the New China news agency reported yesterday.

The Communist news agency, reporting under a deadline of the "Chomo Lungma," the Chinese name for Mount Everest, said: "The three mountaineers — Wang Fuchou, Chu Yin-hua and Konbu of Tibetan nationality — reached the summit of Mount Chomo Lungma, the highest peak in the world, at 0421 Peking time on May 25 (2:20 p.m. MDT, Thursday)."

The agency added: "The conquest of the towering peak, which rises 8,882 metres (29,026 feet) above sea level, by the Chinese mountaineering expedition marked the first success in mankind's history of efforts to reach the summit from the northern slopes of the mountain in the Himalayas."

The mountain was conquered for the first time May 25, 1953, by a British expedition, when Sir Edmund Hillary and Sherpa Tensing Norkay planted the British and Indian flags on its top. They climbed the southern face.

The northern face, which is hidden from the sun, is regarded as more difficult and much colder than the southern route.

Alcoholism On Rise In Province

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Alcoholism Foundation of B.C. said Thursday it has "noticed an increase in the last year of acute alcoholism," many cases requiring hospital treatment.

The foundation added that it has noticed a "sizeable number" of persons who once received treatment then dropped out of sight coming back for further treatment.

Japanese Besiege Premier, March on U.S. Embassy

TOKYO (UPI) — Hordes of stone-throwing Japanese spearheaded by red flag-waving Communist and leftist agitators yesterday besieged Premier Nobusuke Kishi in parliament for hours and then marched on the U.S. embassy for an anti-American demonstration.

Police estimated that 2,000-3,000 Japanese turned out for the nationwide rally called by the Communist-dominated Sohyo labor confederation to protest the new U.S.-Japanese security pact. In Tokyo, where the rally took on a decided anti-American flavor, some 200,000 participated.

It was the seventh consecutive day of demonstrations against the controversial treaty and observers said it was the biggest in memory.

More than 8,000 riot police stood guard behind a barricade of trucks around the parliament building during the more than 12 hours siege by the demonstrators.

Church Seeks Anti-Bias Law

LONDON (AP) — The Church of England, in a booklet published Wednesday, called for a British law against racial discrimination. The booklet said, "We have fortunately no set patterns of discrimination in this country, and many people are puzzled and hesitant in their reaction to their colored neighbors."

demonstrators, chanting demands for Kishi's resignation and cancellation of President Eisenhower's scheduled visit next month.

Kishi's black sedan finally sped out a back entrance while thousands of members of the fanatical leftist Zengakuren students organization showered stones on riot police in front.

At least 30 policemen were injured, five seriously. There were no reports of any injuries among the demonstrators.

Ike May Be Advised To Cancel Japan Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower's top advisers yesterday considered the advisability of cancelling or postponing his June visit to Japan as a result of violent "Stay home, Ike" demonstrations by anti-American Japanese.

Thirteen Hurt

Car Plows Into Band

MADAWASKA, Me. (CP) — yesterday, injuring 13. Two were reported in critical condition.

The band was ready to march to ceremonies marking the dedication of the customs house at the American end of a bridge spanning the St. John River from here to Edmundston, N.B.

Nine of the injured were taken to the Hotel de St. Joseph in Edmundston.

Maine's governor, standing only 25 feet away, described the accident as "horrible."

"It was one of the most tragic scenes I've ever seen," the governor told reporters.

Police Chief Leo Daigle broke into tears after telling a reporter that he saw the car going through the massed band with two of the children being dragged underneath it.

After Seven Years, a Word

Silent War Ends In Divorce Court

By JAY AXELBANK

LOUGHTON, Eng. (UPI)—When George Lusher's wife bawled him out for coming home late from golf one day, he decided not to say another word to her until she apologized.

The way Mrs. Lusher figured it, why should she speak if George didn't?

From 1949 to 1956, through the Korean War, a Labor government, leaky plumbing and the rampages of two healthy young children, the Lushers did not exchange a single word.

CUP OF TEA

Then George asked for a cup of tea. The result—everyone knows how one word will lead to another—landed the couple in divorce court yesterday.

As the judge later quoted Mrs. Lusher, George's seven-year reign of silence was just a "sulk."

Since the couple were not speaking, there of course could be no talk of divorce. They remained under the same roof, got his own meals, day after day, month after month, year after year, neither George, now 54, nor Mrs. Lusher, now 54, nor Mrs. Lusher, now silent.

48, so much as grunted in the other's direction.

LET IT GO ON

"I just let it go on and did nothing to help my husband out of his silence," Mrs. Lusher was quoted as telling the judge. "I expect I could have ended it at any time."

Finally, she said, she wrote George a letter suggesting the possibility of conversation, and his request of a cup of tea was the result.

Mrs. Lusher said the falling out after they started talking to each other again was about George's reluctance to do his share of the dishes. That she said, made a divorce mandatory.

TURNED DOWN

The judge, however, did not agree. He turned down her petition, ruling that "in their own way, each is still fond of the other."

His honor did concede, however, that George "when upset tends to withdraw and becomes silent."

Weep No Tears for Killer Eichmann

Gordon Donaldson's recent vivid series on the resurgence of Nazism in Germany gives him a unique and expert background for this article on Adolf Eichmann.

By GORDON DONALDSON

Karl Adolf Eichmann, a dark pensive man with queer, glittering eyes, once boasted in a drunken moment: "I will leap into my grave laughing because the feeling that I have five million people on my conscience will be for me a source of extraordinary satisfaction."

On a day not far off, Eichmann may finally make that leap. Fifteen years after the war he has been caught by the one state implacably determined to bring him to justice, Israel.

Weep no tears for Eichmann — the head of the Jewish department of the Gestapo, the man who proposed, planned and carried out the extermination of European Jewry.

Was He Crazy?

Wonder instead what makes such men. Was he abnormal, deranged, crazy?

All the evidence points the other way. Eichmann, like his dead chief Heinrich Himmler, was the perfect civil servant, death's bureaucrat.

But like Himmler and his own immediate boss, Heinrich Mueller, head of the Gestapo, Eichmann appears on closer examination to be a flat, cloddy man, enlivened only by a spark of malignant hatred.

He was born in March, 1906, son of an electrical contractor, in Solingen. He moved to Austria as a boy and grew up in Hitler's birthplace, Linz.

His hobby was horseback riding, which gave him the bandy-legged gait with which he rolled through his extermination camps.

Young Eichmann was trained as a mechanical engineer, but had to abandon his career when his father went bankrupt in 1927.

Job in Berlin

In 1934, with Hitler securely in power, he got a job in Berlin with the SD (Security Service) as a sergeant in the records department.

There he began studying Nazi documents on Zionism. He picked up Hebrew and Yiddish and visited Palestine, apparently to stir up trouble among the Arabs.

His real career began in 1938 when he was promoted captain in the SD and put in charge of the Vienna Jewish "emigration" office.

He was an earnest young man, he took no part in sports because, he said, of a hand injury. He was a hard drinker, he kept a smart mistress, he had all the cynicism of the hardened Gestapo or SD man.

A few months after his Austrian appointment, he took over Bureau IVA 4b of the Reich Security Headquarters — a fairly insignificant little office at 116 Kurfuerstenstrasse, Berlin.

It was to become the centre and sanctum of the Final Solution — to enter which even top Gestapo leaders needed special passes, the planning office of the extermination camp system.

Its emissaries spread horror across Europe. They were called the Eichmann Commando.

In June, 1941, Rudolf Hoess, commandant of the then-small camp at Auschwitz, was summoned by Himmler and told that his camp would become the main extermination place for the Jews of the continent.

In July Eichmann arrived at Auschwitz with the details of the master plan.

Hoess later described his dealings with Eichmann in his autobiography, written just before the Nazis hanged him in his own camp.

At this time, said Hoess, Eichmann had been killing people with exhaust gasses in trucks, but was looking for an efficient type of gas for greater efficiency.

A few months later, Hoess discovered Zyklon B, a preparation for killing vermin that would also kill humans in large numbers. He suggested it to Eichmann.

Eichmann approved Zyklon B and the Auschwitz extermination system began.

Hoess said he was relieved that no more mass shootings would be necessary. He had been worried by Eichmann's gleeful stories of Jews being mown down by Special Squads with machine guns.

Hoess tried to find out what made Eichmann tick.

He wrote: "Even when we were quite alone together and the drink had been flowing freely, so that he was in his most expansive mood, he showed that he was completely obsessed with the idea of destroying every single Jew he could lay his hands on."

"Without pity and in cold blood we must complete this extermination as rapidly as possible. Any compromise, even the slightest, would have to be paid for bitterly at a later date."

Eichmann, his strange eyes glinting, would oppose those Nazis who wanted to preserve fit Jews able to work.

According to Hoess, he had doubts that the Germans would win the war and wanted to destroy as many Jews as possible to "preserve the German people from them" in future.

Eichmann alone knew the exact numbers of Jews transported to death camps.

The trains rolled on. The energetic Eichmann, was forever devising new and more efficient systems of slaughter.

"Don't be sentimental, this is a Fuehrer's Order!" he snarled at critics. Only the Final Solution mattered to Eichmann by this time.

His last gesture was to send train after train into Belsen, pouring new victims into a camp already ravaged by typhus, causing tens of thousands of deaths — this despite Nazi orders Belsen was to be cleaned up and lives spared.

This was the last savage thrust of Adolf Eichmann. Now he has reappeared, dragged before his accusers.

Getting Their Heads Together

Meeting of minds on New York Polo Grounds turf came when Frank Haydock, right, of Manchester United, and Bob Blackwood of Hearts of Midlothian, both tried to head ball. Hearts and Manchester United play in Vancouver tomorrow night.

Rookie Goalie Hot In New Westminster

NEW WESTMINSTER—Excellent goalkeeping by a rookie making his first Inter-City League start and a fine team display carried New Westminster to a 15-8 win over Vancouver here Thursday night to tighten the race.

Result left New Westminster and Vancouver tied for second place, only one point behind Nanaimo in what is developing into a three-team fight for the league title, held by the New Westminster club.

Pressed into service when sophomore Les Norman suffered a cut ear in the pre-game warmup, Marv Schweitzer blocked 26 shots, including 14 of 15 in the first half, when the defending champions grabbed a 6-1 lead.

Norman was ready for second half action but New Westminster coach Jake Proctor decided to let Schweitzer finish the job. He slumped just a bit in the third quarter but his club never lost control.

Cliff Sepka and Ivan Stewart led the winners with three goals each but 11 different players scored goals

Two More Records Broken by Jumpers

Two more new records were set yesterday, making it five for the meet to date, as field events were completed in the annual Greater Victoria High Schools track and field meet.

The event will be completed at the Victoria High School grounds today with the running of the track events. Action is scheduled to start at approximately 1:15 p.m.

Broken yesterday were the old highs for the senior girls' high jump and the junior boys' broad jump. No one even came close to existing records in the other five events completed yesterday.

Colonist Cup Rifle Shoot At Weekend

Close to 60 marksmen are expected to take part in two days of competition at Heals Range for the Colonist Cup Saturday and Sunday.

Saturday the shooters will fire 10 rounds from 200, 300, 500 and 600 yards for the RCN Trophy. Sunday the range is from 900 and 300 yards, with 15 rounds from each station, for the President's Match. Colonist Cup is for the aggregate score of both competitions.

Entries are expected from PPCLI, RCN, HMCS Malahat, Canadian Scottish, Fifth Regiment, 25th Militia Group, cadets of all corps, RCMP, up-Island RCAF and South Vancouver Island Rangers.

Hearts, Manchester U. Big Draw

25,000 for Soccer Classic?

More than 20,000 people are expected at Vancouver's Empire Stadium tomorrow night, and if it should turn out to be a warm, clear evening, some hopes are being held for a new Canadian attendance record for soccer football.

The occasion is the clash between Hearts of Midlothian, Scotland's Division I champions, and storied Manchester United.

It's a soccer classic in the true sense of the word and interest is tremendous reports Dave Fryatt, chairman of the B.C. Football Association Commission.

"Our advance sale is encouraging," Fryatt said last night, "and if the weather is right we should have more than 20,000 fans. In fact, I think we would have a chance for an all-time Canadian soccer turnout."

Largest crowd to watch a soccer game in Canada was at Toronto in 1952, when 25,000 showed up for the match between Tottenham Hotspur and Manchester United. Largest B.C. crowd was the 21,000 at Empire Stadium in 1958 for the match between Hearts and Manchester City, won by the Scottish team, 5-2.

It would have been difficult to find a more attractive pairing than the Hearts-United attraction. Both have come to the fore in post-war years and both have the best records in their countries in that period. And in Tommy Walker and Matt Busby, the two clubs are blessed with the top managers in the game today.

Once one of the most lightly regarded teams in Scotland, Hearts started their climb in 1951 when Walker took over a young team.

He didn't really get started until 1954, when Hearts won the League Cup. They've never looked back since. They won the League Cup again last year, retained it this year.

Hearts won the Scottish Cup in 1956 and in 1958 won the First Division championship.

They won the First Division championship again this season, losing only three games, winning 23 and drawing eight. With 102 goals from their 34 league games, they were the most-potent attacking team in Scotland.

Hearts will be minus only two players—Alex Young, who is in the army, and John Cummings, on tour with the Scottish F.A. club.

Manchester United have the best post-war record of any club in England, a record which would have been even greater but for the tragic Munich air disaster of two years ago. In that crash, eight United players were killed and two others so seriously injured they have never played since. The club's trainer, coach and secretary were also killed and Busby lingered between life and death for weeks before recovering.

CARRIED ON

The remnants carried on and amazingly reached the Cup final that year, there losing, 2-0, to Bolton.

This season, United finished seventh with 45 points, and with 102 goals ranked only below Wolverhampton (106) on attack.

United, playing for the first time ever in Vancouver, are not taking the game against Hearts lightly. Joining the club for tomorrow's game are regulars Bobby Charlton, Dennis Viollet and Maurice Setters, who have been on the European tour with England's international team. They were flown to Vancouver from Europe.

CRASH SURVIVOR

Setters, a right-half formerly with West Bromwich, was signed only last January. The fee was 30,000 pounds. Viollet, a survivor of the Munich crash, is one of the highest-scoring centre-forwards in England and Charlton, inside left, shows 12 goals for his 14 international appearances with England.

Inside-right Albert Quixall is another of United's top "name" players. The inside-right cost United $45,000, the second highest transfer fee paid by an English club, when he was obtained from Sheffield Wednesday in 1958.

SIX INTERNATIONALS

Altogether, six United players have played for English international sides, goalkeeper Harry Gregg has played 18 times for Ireland, left-back Joe Carolan played for Eire last November and forward Ken Morgan has twice played for Wales.

Hearts have five players who have been capped by Scotland, one who played for an English international team. Game time Saturday is 8:30. Tickets may be obtained at Hicks Ticket Bureau, 610 Dunsmuir Street, Vancouver, up until 5 p.m. They will be on sale at Empire Stadium starting at 7 p.m.

HERE JUNE 6

Hearts will make two more B.C. appearances. They will meet the E.C. All-Stars, whom they defeated, 4-1, in 1958, at Empire Stadium on Saturday, June 4.

Then, on Monday, June 6, they will meet at all-star Victoria side at Royal Athletic Park. Tickets for this game are now on sale at 1231 Government Street.

San Francisco Mound Corps Keeps Giants Well in Front

Orlando Cepeda and the three Willies, Mays, McCovey and Kirkland give them one of the most feared batting orders in the major leagues but San Francisco Giants are going places this season with some of the finest pitching seen in many a day.

Sam Jones, Mike McCormick, Jack Sanford and Johnny Antonelli, with some help along the way from Billy O'Dell, have been only slightly short of sensational so far this season.

Yesterday, it was Sanford's turn. The fast-balling right-hander checked in with a four-hit shutout and got some late-inning batting support from his big guns for a 9-0 win over Philadelphia's hapless Phillies.

The Giants are averaging about one shutout every four games and have had route-gone performances in exactly half their first 36 games, an almost unheard of performance in this day of jittery managers and stress on bullpen strength.

Giants pitchers have given up only 251 hits in 328 innings and the staff earned-run average is about 2.65, excellent for an all-star pitcher and amazing for a whole pitching staff.

The Phillies have been blanked four times and have only scored three runs in 53 innings while losing six in a row to the National League leaders.

Cepeda batted in four runs, two with his eighth homer, and Mays hit a three-run homer in the ninth as the Giants wound up with a five-run outburst which made it seem easier than it was.

HANGING CLOSE

Meanwhile, Milwaukee Braves, somewhat overlooked but hanging closer to the pace than most realize—they have lost exactly the same number of games as the Giants—knocked off St. Louis Cardinals, 4-1. Bob Buhl struck out nine as Hank Aaron led a 12-hit attack.

Three games tightened up the five-club American League scrap a bit more as the fourth-place New York Yankees topped Baltimore Orioles out of first place and Chicago White Sox ended a four-game losing streak to get within a half game of the lead.

Whitey Ford went the distance for the first time this season as he blanked the Orioles, 2-0, on three hits.

FIRST DEFEAT

The White Sox, in outscoring Kansas City Athletics, 3-1, handed Dick Hall his first defeat after four wins. A two-run homer by Dick Brown and a run-scoring triple by Minnie Minoso sank Hall as the Athletics got only five hits off Bob Shaw and Turk Lown.

By Red Smith

Baseball fans chuckled indulgently last year when the Yankees got off to a floundering start. In saloons, the art of conversation boomed. "Hey, Mac," a stranger would say, "think the Yankees will clinch the pennant by Mother's Day?" Some beautiful friendships started that way, but the target date passed and the furrows deepened in C. D. Stengel's throbbing brow.

It was Father's Day before New York had a shot at first place. The Yankees could have taken the lead by winning a double-header that Sunday. Instead they lost twice. They never got so close again.

Now another June approaches and filial America prepares to salute its potent males. This is the time of year when form starts to assert itself in the big leagues and a fellow can begin to believe what he sees in the team standings. What he sees today is mildly surprising in several instances, but there's nothing incredible there.

Pittsburgh battling for first place, Baltimore near first, and Los Angeles in fifth are all unexpected. Otherwise the arrangement is just about what the blueprints called for. It is significant that the professionals are taking the Pirates seriously now and many who rated them highly a year ago are a little ashamed of themselves for getting touted off after the fourth-place finish of 1959. "They're ready to make a battle of it all the way," says Bill Rigney, whose Giants are parties to the fight.

They're Hitting Like Men

Last season the Pirates played pennant-winning ball at home but couldn't get arrested on the road. This year they're hitting like men, with operatives like Bob Friend and Bill Mazeroski back on their game.

Though the Giants have been dragging their feet occasionally since quitting Candlestick Park, they still look like logical favorites. In San Francisco they won on superior pitching, possibly aided by the prevailing winds which oppose right-handed hitters. Some days their attack falls far short of its potential, but the frightening power is still there.

Charley Dresen is rating the Braves in a "forwardly position," as the chart-callers say. No doubt he is conserving some of his intellectual powers for the big drive later on. Walter Alston is saving nothing, even employing Don Drysdale in relief, but only Frank Howard is hitting for Los Angeles.

In the past Baltimore have been distinguished for agile fielding, sharp pitching, and a loathsome gentility at the plate. The current Orioles have been attacking like logger-head shrikes, and the team is last in the fielding averages. They've made more errors than anybody else in the league, but they get the big inning one day and big pitching the next.

Different than Last Year

Still doing it the hard way, the White Sox have managed to cling to first place much of the time, even though this frequently demands a rally in the ninth. There's been one major departure, though, from last year's design for living. Ted Kluszewski is hitting .422, probably the noblest figure registered on Chicago South Side since Shoeless Joe Jackson.

As to the Yankees, there has been no reason thus far to revise estimates made in spring training. They've been flogging the fences like the Yankees of old. Until Bob Cery arrived from the farm they've had people named Berra playing left field. And the pitching is altogether unreliable. Fourth place seems their proper niche at this stage.

For pure and virtuous adherence to form, nothing could surpass the Senators' last Sunday performance in Chicago. Washington isn't a good team because it has a two-man pitching staff. When Camilo Pascual or Pedro Ramos is pitching, the Senators can beat anybody.

Ramos was supposed to pitch the first game of Sunday's double-header but he got skulled by a fungo stick and Pascual took over out of turn. He won, 7 to 5.

Back from the hospital with a knot on his intellect but no kinks in his arm, Ramos worked the second game. He won, 3 to 2.

If there's anybody still unconvinced that form is taking over, let him note the positions of the Phillies and Red Sox.

Olympic Trip for Schelt

MONTREAL (CP)—Four Montrealers and Vancouver's Winnie Schelt Thursday night were named to Canada's Olympic boxing team after the windup to the three-night national championships and trials here.

Light middleweight Jeff Aljaye, junior welterweight Raoul Sarrazin, featherweight Gabby Mancini and bantamweight Marcel Bellefeuille were the Montreal fighters who won places.

Schelt, 18, a service station attendant, is a lightweight. Toronto's Sigfried Fisher, 23, was named alternate, a fill-in should any of the five not be able to make the trip to Rome for the summer games.

The six were culled from a list of 10 champions crowned Thursday night in the finals of a tournament that drew 65 top amateurs from across the country.

Montrealers collected six of the 10 championships, a triumph by RCAF Cpl. Al Brack included.

Light-heavyweight Brack, 25, is stationed at Cold Lake, Alta., and fought under Alberta colors although he calls Montreal home.

Vancouver fireman Patrick Clark, 22, won the heavy-weight crown and the fly-weight title went to Norman Hickey, 24, a stock-keeper in a Toronto chocolate factory.

No Election Hint

B.C. Voters' List
Will Be Larger

If the provincial government intends to hold an election this year it is not tipping its hand by setting any deadline for completion of a new voters' list.

A government official said yesterday that completion of the new list, the first enumeration since 1952, "is several weeks away."

He said enumerators are not working against any target date for completion of the massive undertaking.

Initial indications are that the completed new list will show a sharp increase in the number of voters since the last election.

Premier Bennett has studiously avoided giving any hint as to when the next election will be called.

Northwest
Ad Officials
Here Today

More than 75 newspaper advertising executives from all parts of the Pacific Northwest will begin their annual convention in the Empress Hotel today.

Registration for the Pacific Northwest Newspaper Advertising Executive Association took place last night and was followed by a cocktail party.

Previous intention of council was to submit the bylaw to a vote only of the property-owners in the downtown area directly affected.

But Mayor Percy Scurrell said after the aldermen approved the new plan in closed committee after the regular council meeting, "the city-wide vote is felt necessary because the government is of the opinion that, in view of the fact that the loan is to be paid from meter revenue and the meter revenue comes from all the people, a vote of all property-owners is desirable."

The bylaw will have to be approved by the provincial cabinet, the mayor said, and a special council meeting will be held June 2 to introduce it. "I think we can probably set the date then, and our target will be June 23."

Legislation was passed this year allowing property in the downtown area alone to stand behind the borrowing for the downtown improvement.

But Mayor Scurrell said that "the government has been co-operative with us in advising us, and their opinion, which we have concurred with, is that it would be better to have all the property-owners vote."

"We think it extremely urgent—we unanimously think so—that the bylaw be endorsed."

"In our opinion, the expected increased meter revenue will be more than the amount necessary to pay for the parking building, and in our opinion the chance of any tax levy for it is negligible."

Ripple Rock
Brings Medal

The Engineering Institute of Canada has awarded one of its highest honors, the Leonard medal, to Dr. Victor Dolmage and J. W. Stewart of Vancouver for a study on the demolition of Ripple Rock.

Dr. Dolmage, a planning engineer, was the man who planned the huge blast which took the tops of the twin Ripple Rocks April 5, 1958. He pressed the button which set off the explosives.

Mr. Fern drew Ides of March with ticket number LLS 78036. He used his 20-month-old daughter Lori's name as a nom-de-plume.

Lori was in bed and asleep last night when Mr. Fern heard of his lucky draw.

Boys

A nine-year-old boy and his 10-year-old companion accused of stealing a car and speeding up to 80 miles an hour were later stopped by police cycling along the Malahat highway.

They were turned over to juvenile authorities who are considering laying charges of car theft and car prowling. Police, who stopped the youngsters Wednesday, say there's also a possibility of a charge of bicycle theft.

The younger boy, who will soon mark his ninth birthday, was allegedly driving a car which was followed at speeds between 75 and 80 miles per hour.

Its driver was escorted to an address which he gave as the home of his parents. He ran away when the occupants there denied knowing him.

City Woman Worries
But Hopes for Best

Mrs. Ada Gorton, 653 Ralph, is worried about the fate of her brother and his family, whose home at San Bernardo, Chile, is just 10 miles south of Santiago and in the midst of an area swept this week by earthquake and tidal waves.

Samuel Fieldhouse, 84, has lived in Chile almost all his adult life, his sister said. One son, Edward James, was born in Victoria when her brother last visited here, in 1919.

The Fieldhouse family was caught in another major quake in Chile some years ago, and then it was almost a year before Mrs. Gorton learned if they were safe. They had barely escaped with their lives.

"It's no use writing or wiring now," said Mrs. Gorton. "I'll just have to wait, and hope for the best."

Navy's Sunset Ceremony
Heralds Swiftsure Classic

A colorful event heralding the eve of the renowned Swiftsure sailing race which gets under way from Victoria waters on Saturday will be a Royal Canadian Navy sunset ceremony to be staged tonight.

It will be the second and possibly the last sunset ceremony performed by naval personnel this year and will start on the grounds of the legislative buildings at 8.40 p.m.

Naval forces taking part will consist of a 60-man guard of HMCS Naden technical apprentices, two gun crews of 44 men and HMCS Naden band.

Not Tidal Wave at All

'Tsunami'
Is VillainSea Expert Explains
Quake Surge

By PETER BRUTON

Those surging tidal waves which wrought so much devastation and destruction in the Pacific during the past few days aren't really tidal waves at all.

As a matter of fact they're more properly known as "Tsunamis"—a Japanese word which, translated literally, means ... well, tidal waves.

This was stated yesterday by a Pacific Naval Laboratory spokesman during a brief resume of the birth, life and death of a Tsunami.

SUBTLE DIFFERENCE

There's a subtle but important difference between a tidal wave and a Tsunami.

Normal waves breaking on the shore or beach are the real tidal waves. But a monster coaster, up to 100 miles wide and many feet high, born in an underground upheaval, is really a Tsunami.

HIT THE TIP

It was a Tsunami which this week hit Hawaii, the northern tip of Vancouver Island, and many other scattered areas throughout the wide Pacific.

"An abrupt rise or drop in the land surface starts a disturbance like throwing a rock in the water," said the official. "Up to three or four waves spread out in an ever widening circle. The secret is that as the water depth decreases the wave height increases."

WOULDN'T NOTICE

"Out in the ocean you wouldn't notice a Tsunami if you were on a ship. It might only be six inches high or at the most two to three feet. But it can really be destructive when it nears shore."

A Tsunami can travel up to several hundred miles an hour. When it nears shore it tends to be bent towards the land and that is why the wave last weekend came rushing down Juan de Fuca Strait into Victoria and Esquimalt Harbours and up the Gorge.

DANGER SPOT

Most dangerous place to be if another Chilean Tsunami hits Vancouver Island is the northwest tip region near Winter Harbor, where $40,000 worth of damage was done earlier this week.

This area is in a direct line with the centre of the earthquake and is facing it, the official said.

The position was made even worse in that Winter Harbor is built like a funnel which gets narrower and narrower while the water becomes shallower and shallower. The wave increases in size and speed as it rushes forward.

ALBERNI — Frank J. Lachance, charged with catching over his limit of trout while fishing in Bainbridge Lake, was fined $20 in Alberni court Thursday.

Accused saw his 21 fish confiscated by the Crown. His rod was ordered returned to him. He told Magistrate A. Crozier that he was unaware of the daily limit of 12 sports fish.

HYDROFOIL SPEEDS IN PUERTO RICO
... will it come here?

Plan 'Plausible'

Hydrofoil to Start
Bellingham Run?

A scheme to launch a 40-knot hydrofoil ship passenger service between Victoria and Bellingham was deemed "plausible" by a city shipbuilder last night.

The scheme came to light in an Associated Press dispatch from Seattle which said that unidentified backers are believed to have already purchased the vessel to be used on the run.

INTEREST HERE

Victoria Machinery Depot president Harold Husband said last night that his firm has been "following with great interest developments in the hydrofoil field."

He said he believed the radical high-speed vessels could be practical on the run proposed in the Seattle reports.

DRAG CUT

Hydrofoil craft are equipped with wing-like projections which act in the water just as airplane wings act in the air. When a certain speed is reached the foils lift the hull of the boat above the surface of the water, greatly reducing drag.

Ships Travel
At 40 Knots

Mr. Husband said he believed that engineering could solve the obvious hazard to hydrofoil boats posed by floating and partly submerged logs prevalent in local waters.

The U.S. group is said to have bought a vessel which has previously been in operation under foreign registry.

NOT SHARED

Mr. Husband's views on the practicability of such a vessel were not shared by Robert J. Acheson, the Seattle president of Black Ball Transport, operators of the recently completed Mv. Coho which plies the Victoria-Port Angeles passenger route.

"I've looked pretty thoroughly into the possibility of using hydrofoils in the Puget Sound area and frankly, they scared me to death," he said.

LOGS DEADLY

He believes it would be impossible for the master of such a craft to avoid collisions with "deadheads" (submerged or partly submerged logs) and that the hydrofoils could not survive such impacts at speeds of 40 knots.

He also doubted the authenticity of the Seattle reports, saying, "you would think I would have heard about it before now."

Council Refuses Grant to Chest,
Splits $25,000 Among City Groups

The Community Chest will receive no donation from city council this year.

The Chest asked for the entire $25,000 set aside in the budget under the heading of charitable and special grants this year, but council yesterday rejected the request and approved the grants recently recommended by finance committee.

And it changed the heading, for the future, to "special grants," with no mention of charity.

Ald. Elmer McEwen alone held that the Community Chest should receive the money.

Grants equivalent to taxes, he said, had no relation to the needs of the individual groups, and he believed all the recipients could join the Chest.

The YMCA and YWCA (receiving grants equivalent to taxes) were member agencies of the Chest and, he said, "are operating commercial businesses at cut-rate prices, which is entirely unfair to private business."

But Ald. Arthur Dowell argued that if the city were to refuse grants to the YMCA, YWCA and Boy Scouts, the Community Chest would have to give them more and other Chest agencies would suffer accordingly.

And, he said, the Sara Spencer Foundation, the aged women's home, the art gallery, the symphony society and other recipients were not members of the Chest and some couldn't be, but were assets to the city and worthy of help.

After approving the recommended grants, council agreed with Ald. Hugh Ramsay that a problem would be removed by referring to them in future only as special grants.

In other action yesterday, council:

- Referred to public works committee a request from Public Works Minister W. N. Chant for use of cluster lights in the area of the cathedral and the new law courts building.
- Referred to intermunicipal committee a letter from the minister of education saying that telling school boards how to use a provincial allowance of $750 per pupil for school supplies would be interference on local autonomy.

• Voted unanimously for establishment of a joint juvenile and family court in Greater Victoria, the municipal share of cost to be divided on a population basis.

• Decided to give a civic luncheon June 6 for the visiting Hearts of Midlothian soccer team.

• Accepted finance committee's recommendation, without dissent, that the present single polling-station system be retained in elections.

• Decided to seek through the Union of B.C. Municipalities a change in the Municipal Act so that members of such civic boards as the arena commission and library board could be given receptions to honor them for their services.

Young Dancer Returns

Recently returned to Victoria after travelling for 17 months is Miss Heather Duncan of 10 Moss Street. During her absence Miss Duncan resided in Ottawa for six months, travelling extensively instructing and adjudicating Highland dancing in Ontario, Quebec and New York State. Miss Duncan also took several courses in musical comedy and modern dancing while in Ontario.

Last summer she travelled to Europe spending two and one-half months in Great Britain and the continent where she took further instruction in dancing and Highland lessons from J. L. MacKenzie, world champion Highland dancer. She also completed her Scottish Official Board of Highland Dancing Adjudicator's examination with a mark of 86 per cent.

At present Miss Duncan is acting as overseas organizer for the Scottish Dance Teachers' Alliance Medal Tests and Grade Examinations. In this capacity she is in contact with New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Edmonton, Vancouver, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto, Vancouver, Ottawa, Montreal, Philadelphia, Buffalo and the Gaelic College of Celtic Folk Arts in St. Ann's, Nova Scotia. There are approximately 1,000 tests being conducted throughout North America of which Miss Duncan is responsible for the entries and timetables in each city.

At the end of June, Heather, has been asked to judge at the Los Angeles Highland Games and throughout the summer will be giving instructions to teachers in Spokane, Vancouver and Edmonton.

Women Offenders Create National Inconvenience

A woman from Hamilton, Ont., was the first to be sentenced to a penitentiary term in Canada. It happened in 1835, and that year the penitentiary report stated that women constituted a great inconvenience.

"Now 125 years later, past records show that each year reports contained that same word, along with trouble and annoyance, in reference to women prisoners."

UNDERSTATEMENT

These reports might be said to be great understatements, Mr. J. Alex Edmison, QC, told members of the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon at the Empress Hotel.

"The Female Offender" was the subject of the address given by the member of the National Parole Board.

NO GUIDANCE

One of the main problems in connection with women was the lack of facilities in smaller jails. Many such places have cramped quarters, no informed guidance, no place for exercise, recreation or reading. In fact, no treatment at all.

As many of the offenders suffer from a basic insecurity they can become deeply frustrated under such conditions. The result, said Mr. Edmison, is that often they come out less equipped to meet life than when they went in.

TREATMENT

To meet the eternal question of "What?" when the gates of the prison open, Mr. Edmison said more intensified treatment might be the answer.

Also to combat the deadly problem of monotony and the nothingness of prison life, vocational training could be

Eye Color Influences Happiness

LONDON (AP)—Husbands and wives with different colored eyes have the best chance of being happy. Authority for this eye-opener is Dr. Neil P. R. Clyde, writing in the current issue of the British Medical Association's magazine, Family Doctor.

"In seven marriages out of 10," writes Dr. Clyde, "the husband has different-colored eyes to his wife."

The doctor based his conclusions on a personal "eye happiness" poll.

Saying that the color of the eyes is a reliable guide to character, the doctor gave these hints:

People with blue, green or grey eyes are clear thinkers who are ruled by their heads.

People with brown or hazel eyes are emotional, impulsive, generous—ruled by their hearts.

Dr. Clyde also believes that eye color is a guide to a person's calling, as "most senior politicians and chiefs of armed forces are blue-eyed."

Ducklings Dying—It's Too Damp

VANCOUVER (CP)—Stanley Park is full of dying ducklings but it's all part of nature's scheme, zoo curator Alan Best says philosophically.

"Normally we'd see hundreds of little ducklings all over the park this year there have hardly been any," says Best.

He explained that when the ducklings follow their mothers from the bushes where they were born to nearby water they have to go through high grass, weeds and underbrush.

"This year the ground and grass is wet and the fine down on these babies becomes soaked. They get waterlogged and have to fall back, eventually so far that their mothers lose track of them.

"And those that get there are lucky if they survive their first rainpour away from the protection of the bushes."

But Best isn't too concerned about the high fatality rate.

"It's just nature's way of controlling the number," he said. If this didn't happen every three or four years we'd have so many ducks around we wouldn't be able to see sky."

CLC to Seek Peace

B.C. Ironworkers Confused As Two Locals Fight It Out

VANCOUVER (CP)—Slight confusion reigns in the ranks of British Columbia's ironworkers.

Nobody seemed to know just how many of its 1,000-odd members remained in Local 97 of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Ironworkers (CLC) or how many had switched to the new Canadian Ironworkers Union Local 1, formed by a breakaway group from the International Wednesday night.

Officials of both unions and legal counsel were equally vague on the status of court actions involving the International and three provisional officers of the new union.

A Canadian Labor Congress official indicated yesterday the Congress will attempt to bring a reconciliation between the International Ironworkers Union and its breakaway British Columbia local.

Business agent Norm Eddison of the CIU, one of three Local 97 officers fired by the International last week for conducting an unauthorized strike last summer, put the new union's membership in excess of the 200 who voted to withdraw from the International.

Canada's Tiniest Strike Wins Raise for One Man

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)—Canada's smallest strike ended yesterday with a union victory.

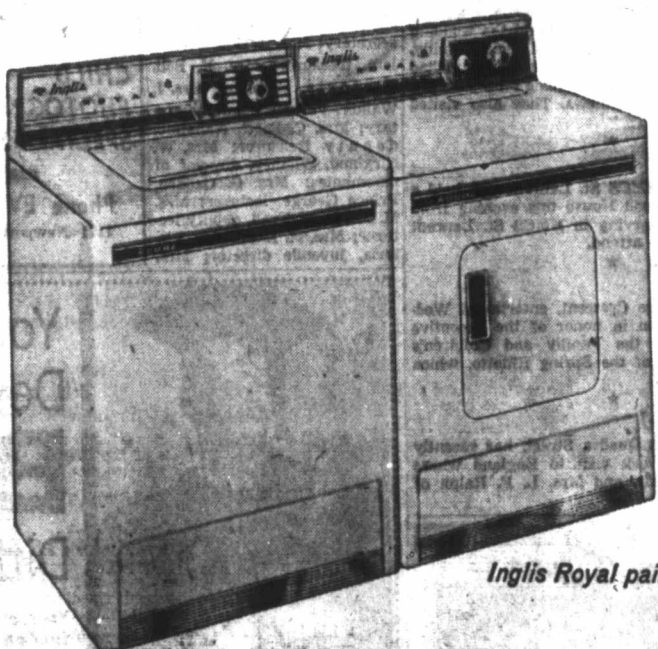

Bill McPherson, sole employee of a meat firm, held a strikevote as a member of Local 45, Meat Cutters' Union, and unanimously favored a strike.

At 6.30 a.m. yesterday, he walked off the job and began picketing. By 9 a.m., the company and a union representative had come to terms, and Mr. McPherson was back at work.

SALES PROVE IT!

THE FULL-TIME INGLIS LINT FILTER

Works all the time your wash is on—even on partial loads. Not a speck of lint fuzz gets on your clothes. So easy to clean, too. You simply swish it under the tap!

DRIES WASH WEARS WRINKLE-FREE

Ten minutes before the drying time is up, the heat automatically shuts off, and your wash wears are cooled and air-fluffed for 10 minutes at room temperature.

THE FAMOUS INGLIS "SUDS AND WATER SAVER"

On a big load, the hot sudsy water is pumped into your laundry tub, then pumped back for re-use with your next load. No, the water doesn't cool off because the thick suds form an effective insulation.

"SANI-SUN" LAMP FOR SUN-FRESH FRAGRANCE

Switch on your Royal dryer and the built-in "Sani-Sun" lamp drenches your clothes with sunshine goodness—without the danger of sunlight fading. Gives your clothes a fresh, wholesome scent. Helps sanitize, too.

10 WASHING CYCLES, 8 DRYING CYCLES—FIT EVERY FABRIC NEED

The Inglis Royal not only washes automatically, but it selects the correct setting automatically. You simply select and push the button that matches the fabric group you want to wash, and turn the dial until it stops. The washer then fills to the proper pre-set level with the correct wash water temperature; selects the right washing speed; the exact washing time required; the correct rinse water temperature; the proper safe spin speed ... all automatically!

SIX SIMPLE TIPS OFFERED FOR HAPPY HOURS AFLOAT

To get the most enjoyment out of a boat, assuring safe, carefree hours afloat for the whole family, here are six tips for the skipper:

1. Make sure all hands know how to board your craft without tipping it. Boats do not tip by themselves—careless people tip them.

2. Know your motor, what it will do and what it will not. Learn how to start, stop and change gears and speeds in varying situations. Instruction manuals come with most new motors. The manufacturer will supply you with another if the original is lost.

3. Learn how to leave a dock or mooring under power, make a landing or come alongside another boat. Practice these manoeuvres until you know how to handle your craft expertly.

4. Learn and obey the nautical rules of the road.

5. Be weatherwise. Get the weather forecast before you set out on the water. Learn the weather signs in your home waters. Clouds and wind movements foretell changes in the weather. Keep your radio tuned to weather reports.

6. Learn to read official government charts and always obtain those for the waters in which you are navigating. Safe channels, underwater obstructions and aids to navigation are shown on these "road maps of the waterways."

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD E. FREY

The par sheet for today's deal in the intercollegiate championship call for North-South to make a game and, naively perhaps, begins, "The chief problem is in the bidding. It is especially aggravated if East opens with a weak two spade bid, for which his hand is perfectly suited. Assuming two passes and a double by North, North-South may wind up at four hearts, and may actually make it. Otherwise it behooves them to find the 4-4 fit in diamonds, for game cannot be made at clubs."

Assuming that East passes initially and then overcalls the opening bid of one club, South is hard pressed for a good bid. Perhaps the best available is the cue-bid in the opponent's suit. When this uncovers North's four-card diamond suit, it should open up the way to the best final contract—five diamonds.

A diamond ruff defeats a five club contract, but the same bad break can cause difficulties in the diamond contract. If spades are continued at trick two, North trumps and leads a diamond. West's best defense is to ruff two rounds of diamonds.

Now, if declarer leads a third trump, West wins and plays a spade, insuring himself another trump trick. So declarer has to play all out in hopes that West holds only three spades. He puts South on lead to play the third spade, and ruffs it. South is put in again to continue diamonds, and since West is out of spades, he can do no damage.

Moscow Espionage

Great Seal 'Bugged' In U.S. Embassy

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said yesterday that the Soviet Union planted a listening device for espionage in the Great Seal of the United States hung in the American ambassador's private office in Moscow.

Lodge made the disclosure just before the security council, by a 7-2 vote, with Ceylon and Tunisia abstaining, rejected a Soviet demand for condemnation of the admitted American U-2 spy plane flights over Russia.

Lodge produced the seal in a dramatic move in the council session. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko immediately sneered at it and his ally, Polish ambassador Jerzy Michalowski, charged that the United States had "bugged" many of Poland's offices in this country.

Lodge did not say when the microphone was planted in the U.S. Moscow embassy. A U.S. spokesman said added details were being withheld for security reasons and further information on the incident must come from the state department.

In Washington, department officials said the discovery of the bugged Great Seal occurred in 1952 when George F.

Kennan was ambassador. The seal was in the study of Kennan's residence a short distance from the embassy proper.

Old-Fashioned Spy U.S.'s Last Resort

WASHINGTON (AP) — The suspension of U-2 plane flights over Russia has forced the United States to fall back on more conventional espionage practices — until still-untried space spies can take up the slack.

From Stalinists, China

'Pressure' Said Reason Nikita Scuttled Summit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower said yesterday that "pressure by Stalinists and the Chinese Reds," rather than the spy plane incident, may have been the real reason Soviet premier Nikita S. Khrushchev scuttled the summit conference.

The president raised this possibility in talking with chairman Richard B. Russell of the Senate Armed Services committee.

Eisenhower gave the 20 congressional leaders a secret 90-minute briefing on the downing of the American U-2 spy plane in Russia and the Subsequent collapse of the summit talks. He also pledged full co-operation to the Senate Foreign Relations committee which opens an inquiry into both matters tomorrow.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the president provided the congressional leaders with highly-classified intelligence data which he could not discuss in his speech to the nation last night.

Meanwhile George F. Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to Moscow, predicted the United States will face a "more ugly" Soviet line because tougher Communists may now rule the Kremlin.

Habit-Forming

Get Horror Off TV Parents Ask

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The Canadian Home and School Federation wants violence and aggression off television screens.

In a unanimous vote, 60 delegates at the federation's annual meeting put on record Thursday Home and School's opinion that horror and crime on TV cause emotional disturbance and "precarious habit formation" among children.

Earlier, an educational psychologist told the conference that Canadian schools are "training but not educating" today's students. He warned that "difficult alternatives" are ahead for educationalists in this country.

Dr. John MacDonald, professor of educational psychology at the University of Alberta, said "selection"—the placing of students in categories according to ability—is a must for Canada's schools.

Dr. MacDonald said teachers must place challenges in the paths of students.

The major objective of education, he said, must be sound learning, with other aims subsidiary.

"Fathers should quit thinking about business for a while and get on the level with their children's thinking, try to understand them," said William J. Oordt of Seattle, a Lions Club district governor, in an interview.

"Give them time as well as money," Mr. Oordt has been a Scoutmaster, basketball coach, YMCA worker, a lay worker at the Carl Erikson Youth Centre in Seattle and has had many delinquent youths paroled to him.

He gave a few pointers he has found effective:

1. Give young people rules—they want them.
2. Have positive views on right and wrong and state them.
3. Never leave youngsters unchaperoned.

4. Discuss sex openly in the home.

5. Teach respect for women.

6. Go to church and see the children go.

7. Teach an automobile is for transportation only.

8. Throw a sledge-hammer through the TV.

9. Have the children bring their friends home.

10. Teach the proper use of alcohol.

Luxury Trip Winner To Be Chosen Tonight

The winners of three luxury holiday trips, offered as prizes for Tourist Appreciation Week, will be chosen tonight.

Iou Worrell, assistant secretary of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, last night appealed for all stubs to be returned to the chamber office, 816 Wharf Street, by 2 p.m. today. The draw will be held at 6.30 p.m.

Some 7,000 TAW buttons, each entitling the buyer to a chance at the trips, have been sold by the chamber at a cost of 25 cents each.

First prize is a return jet flight for two persons to French Canada with four days' hotel accommodation and $50 expenses and special entertainment.

Second prize is a return flight to Hawaii for two persons and $100 expenses, and third prize is a return flight to Seattle for two with four days' accommodation and $50 expenses.

Winners of the TAW questionnaire contest, to find a suitable festival for Victoria on the lines of the Penticton Peach Festival and the Seattle Seafair, will be announced Saturday.

Prizes offered are $50 for first and two prizes of $25 each.

He Learns While He Earns

LET JOE
TELL IT HIMSELF!

Joe's father and mother can remember when, because of his shyness, they would have to come to his rescue during a conversation with strangers and say: "What Joe means is this—." But no longer. Today, Joe can speak for himself—and does. Not that he is loud or talks too much. Always polite and tactful, he knows when to speak up—and what he says is usually worth hearing. In fact, his debating team hasn't lost a match all year.

A change in Joe was apparent within a month after he became a newspaperboy. "Since you will need to know how to talk with people the rest of your life, no matter what type of work you do, I think it is important that you begin learning," Joe's father told him. "And one of the finest ways to learn is to have your own newspaper route business." Joe knows now that this was good advice. And he can see how proud his father is every time he says: "Let Joe tell it himself!"

CHARLIE CHAPLIN

Absent from 'Walk of Fame'

Slight to Chaplin Angers Film Greats

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Noted film personalities were angered yesterday by the absence of Charlie Chaplin's name from Hollywood Boulevard's new "Walk of Fame."

Although they disagreed with his political sympathies, figures like Sam Goldwyn, Mary Pickford, Stan Laurel and Buster Keaton said in interviews the comedian should have his name engraved in the new stretch of pavement with the 1,500 other stars chosen.

But Harry Sugarman, president of the Hollywood Improvement Association, said some of the property owners who helped finance the project threatened to withdraw their money if forced to honor Chaplin, who has accepted Communist honors, criticized the U.S. and is living in Swiss exile.

Said Goldwyn: "If there's anybody entitled to be in a motion picture hall of fame, Mr. Chaplin has probably done more than anybody I know. I don't associate politics with anything like that. Furthermore, I don't believe he's a Communist. I believe he's a capitalist, and I know him better than anybody else."

Miss Pickford said, "We may disagree heartily with Charlie's political views, but we make ourselves ridiculous to the rest of the world by ignoring the world's greatest comedian. It's absurd after what he pioneered for the movies and the mirth he spread."

CFAX Ownership Shift Approved by Board

The Board of Broadcast Governors yesterday approved an application for a change in the control of radio station CFX, Saanich.

Roy Parrett, manager of the station, at present owns one-third of the shares in the company. His two partners each own one-third.

The application was for permission to allow Mr. Parrett to own 60 per cent of the shares with the holdings of his partners reduced to 20 per cent each.

The BBG recommended the applications to the federal cabinet for approval.

Chance Reunites Family

Separated for 20 Years Father Meets Daughter

WINNIPEG (CP)—A father and daughter, separated on the outbreak of the Second World War, were reunited yesterday.

Documents from Germany confirmed that Mrs. Teofil Helewski, 25, entered the housewife, is the daughter of her neighborhood grocer, Abraham Guss.

WEEKS AGO
A few weeks ago Mrs. Helewski, 25, entered the grocery store as a customer. Mr. Guss who had last seen his daughter when she was five thought he recognized her. He questioned her about her early life in Poland and became convinced she was his daughter.

Mrs. Helewski could not remember her early life. She known only that she had been raised as Erna Schroder with brothers and sisters and a father of that name. The name Schroder increased Mr. Guss's conviction. He remembered a man of that name in the Polish village where he was living on the outbreak of war.

SEIZED BY RUSSIANS
A Jew, Mr. Guss was seized by the Russians in the Russian-German partition of Poland in 1940. He spent years in a Siberian labor camp and when he returned to Poland after the war, he could find no trace of his wife, daughter or son. He believed they had perished. In 1947, he remarried and emigrated to Canada.

He established a grocery store in west-central Winnipeg and over the years the only souvenir he had to remind him of his first family was a faded photograph of his first daughter, Anna, taken when she was two-and-a-half years old.

OLD COUNTRY
When Mrs. Helewski entered his shop, a chat about days in the "old country" started the chain of evidence which established their relationship.

The then-revolutionary theory that the earth revolves around the sun with other planets was published by Copernicus in 1543.

Bogus Bills Circulating

HALIFAX, N.S. (UPI)—Police notified, local banks yesterday to be on the lookout for counterfeit $100 bills. Bank officials said that to date none of the bills had been discovered. The bills were reported in circulation recently in the Vancouver area.

Israel Claims Arab Plane

TEL AVIV, Israel (Reuters)—Israel claimed yesterday to have shot down a United Arab Republic MIG jet fighter in a battle inside the Israeli border but a U.A.R. military spokesman denied the report.

Distinguished Failure on '90'

This has been the year of apocalyptic drama—the end of the world in Pat Frank's drama, the extermination of a half-a-million people in this one, and there have been some others. The playwrights are vastly — and quite properly — troubled by the threat of nuclear war, but this has thrown the human problem vastly out of scale.

Burchfield, one of the deans of American painting, has left a record of earlier days when the horse played an important role in everyday life. The studies are sensitive and painted with love and understanding of the animals.

Be My Guest in England Monty Tells Chou En-lai

TOKYO — The Communist New China news agency said British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery strongly urged Chou En-lai to visit England as his personal guest. It did not say whether the invitation was accepted.

The teetotaler Montgomery praised the "new China" and drank wine in a toast to its future. And he pledged to "corrupt the wrong impressions" in the Western world about China.

MOSCOW — Physicians have found author Boris Pasternak to be suffering from cancer of the lung in addition to a heart ailment and stomach trouble. Pasternak has been coughing blood and attendants expressed belief a crisis is approaching for the 70-year-old writer.

BUDAPEST — U.S. multi-millionaire Cyrus Eaton was received by Hungarian Prime Minister Ferenc Mennich yesterday. Eaton will also go to Poland and East Germany after spending a few days in Hungary "to become acquainted with the everyday life of Hungarian workers."

KAMLOOPS — Anyone can build highways but nurses need special qualities. Highway Minister Gagliardi said as he welcomed more than 200 nurses here for the annual meeting of the Registered Nurses' Association of B.C.

Cigaret Addict's Diary

People Funny, So Was Payoff

By TERRY HAMMOND

Q-Day plus six.
People are - funny day here.

When we first started running the Arthur King program for shedding the cigarette habit a number of friends of mine read it over and said, "this is for me."

They gazed at the 21-day tapering off period and they said "this makes sense. I've tried to quit suddenly and I can't do it."

So now some of them have slipped after quitting only six days ago and it is pretty funny what they are saying. I ran into one of them just an hour ago. He was smoking.

"You know," he said, "that business of trying to taper off, these things doesn't work at all. It is just prolonged torture."

"THIS IS IT"

"The only way to quit smoking is just to quit suddenly."

"Is that right?" I said.

"You bet," he went on, "you've just got to tell yourself 'this is it, pal, this is the end.'"

"This is very interesting," I answered, "why DON'T you just tell yourself 'this is it, pal, this is the end.'"

"OUT OF SYSTEM"

"Oh, I'm going to all right," he said, not batting an eye, "but I've got to get this Arthur King business out of my system first."

So I asked him how many cartons it would take him to get Arthur King out of his system and he said, "Well, summer vacation is coming pretty soon and I would not like to spoil it for the family by me quitting smoking, so I guess I'll wait until after that."

"Yes," I said, "I guess you'll have to wait until after that all right, but try not to spoil Christmas."

So much for the weak of will.

"STILL ON CURE"

But some people who are still on the cure are pretty funny, too.

Yesterday I saw one of them light 10 cigarets at one time and then stub them out one by one without inhaling so much as a single puff of smoke. He won a $5 bet from me.

That wasn't so funny, but what was funny was that I gave him a cheque to cover the bet.

It was a funny cheque.

MAYOR'S VETO TO STALL 'SECRECY' LAW 30 DAYS

Lists Name Sellers Of Sweep Tickets

EDMONTON (UPI) — An investigation into sweepstake ticket sales in western Canada loomed today following police seizure of records on western ticket sellers.

Inspector C. W. McNichol said the names of all ticket sellers in the four western provinces were seized in a raid. The evidence will go to the RCMP.

Police arrested George Finlayson, 63, who was fined $100 and costs on a charge of distributing lottery tickets.

MAYOR SCURRAH

Legality Questioned Over First Reading

By R. O. MARRION

City council yesterday gave final approval to a bylaw to exclude reporters from committee meetings except by invitation, but Mayor Percy Scurrell promptly used his power of veto for the first time.

Result is that the "secrecy" bylaw must be reconsidered by council after 30 days, unless, in the meantime, council receives and accepts advice that the bylaw wrongly got past first reading two weeks ago.

The bylaw received final approval, 5-4, when Ald. Elmer McEwen neither voted nor withdrew. Not voting is taken as an affirmative vote.

SECRECY DENIED

Chief proponent of the bylaw was Ald. Rev. J. L. W. McLean, who denied secrecy or censorship were involved.

The bylaw, he said, would give committees power "so to regulate publicity" that ill-timed and perhaps ill-worded publicity would not prejudice city business. It would not mean suppression of news of business done at the council level.

BAR REPORTERS

The bylaw would change an existing provision that reporters can be barred from committee meetings by majority vote, and Ald. Geoffrey Edgell opened debate by suggesting that the new rule would only embarrass reporters by requiring them to stand waiting for an invitation.

Ald. Arthur Dowell noted that five aldermen had been members of a previous regime and knew exactly what had happened when the press was barred from committee meetings then. (Ald. M. H. Mooney was the only alderman above the centre-line of council seniority who voted for the new bylaw.)

POOR RELATIONS

Public relations between city hall and the public, Ald. Dowell said, had reached a very low ebb, and "since you have been in the chair, Mr. Mayor, relations with the papers and the public have never been at such a high level."

"Certainly they won't be kept at that level if we go into secret, for want of a better word, committee meetings."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay, however, saw an implication that council meeting reporting would leave much to be desired if the press were excluded from committee meetings. He liked to think, he said, that the press would still report council meetings properly.

'SIAMESE TWIN'

And Ald. McLean was confident, he said, that the bylaw wouldn't disturb good relations with the press at all. But he was interested in the similarity of editorial reaction

Bulletin

ISTANBUL (AP) — Turkish armed forces took over the country early today in what was described as a bloodless coup d'etat.

The military issued an announcement promising that free elections would be held and that power would be turned over to the winner.

The seizure of power followed weeks of demonstrations against the stranglehold rule of Premier Menderes.

In Victoria's "Siamese twin" newspapers, he said, and while he conceded that editors had a right to express their views in editorials—even to refer to secrecy and censorship—he asserted that news stories on the bylaw had been slanted and colored, and cited some reports.

CLOAK AND DAGGER

The public, he suggested, would receive a cloak and dagger impression of council's move, and "I am interested because the interpretation is so much at variance with the actual facts."

One of the items he referred to was a Colonist story indicating what the results would be if only the minutes of a council meeting were available to the press, and this, he said, referring to a council and not a committee meeting, was clever writing but an example of slanted, distorted, colored reporting giving the public an erroneous impression.

BREAD AND BUTTER

Ald. McLean suggested that the reason the press wanted to keep the right to attend committee meetings was not truly to represent the public in scrutinizing city business, but "because they see it could restrict the number and kind of personal-interest stories concerning individual aldermen."

Newspapermen existed to sell newspapers, he said, and such stories had no significance in relation to the welfare of the citizens and were all part of the reporters' bread and butter.

BEST DO WORK

But the aldermen must consider how they could best do the work of the city in the interests of all the people.

Ald. Mooney made most of his remarks about the bylaw earlier in the meeting, in reply to a letter from the Victoria Ratepayers' Association denouncing the "secrecy bylaw."

He maintained the bylaw would not mean secrecy in public business because business was not done at committee level. (At yesterday's meeting council gave his committee power to make decisions on allowing a circus to be held in Victoria West Park and on allowing the Mount Douglas

'U.S. Policies Placing Man on War's Brink'

Gromyko Hits Back

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Russia's charge of spy-aggression against the United States was knocked down in the United Nations Security Council Thursday. Then Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko lashed back with a charge that U.S. policies are placing "mankind on the brink of war."

The 11-member council, voted 7-2 against the Soviet contention that U.S. U-2 spy flights over Russia constituted aggression. Two countries—Tunisia and Ceylon—abstained.

TONE CHARGES

Earlier Thursday, Gromyko's references to Eisenhower's speech were comparatively mild but he unleashed a full-scale attack later, apparently after receiving instructions from Moscow.

Gromyko was speaking on a compromise resolution introduced by smaller countries—dubbed the "Little Four"—asking the Big Four to resume negotiations on disarmament and other topics listed for consideration at the summit.

Chile Toll May Hit 5,000

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The death toll for south Chile's six-day siege of earthquakes, tidal waves, avalanches and volcanic eruptions may reach 5,000, government sources said Thursday. (See page 3.)

Officially confirmed figures thus far show 3,529 dead and missing. But with scores of communities still cut off officials said a final count cannot be made for weeks.

Chinese Say Payola Only Way to Canada

TORONTO (UPI) — The Royal Canadian Mounted Police plan to check into charges by Chinese community leaders that there is a form of payola operating on the minor official level at Canada's immigration office in Hong Kong.

Officials of the RCMP criminal investigation branch said they would question the two Chinese who made the charges, William C. Wong, Chinese Community Association chairman, attacked corruption in the Canadian immigration office at Hong Kong.

SPCA Hits Electrocuting

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Ton Hughes, SPCA secretary, said the association's solicitor has been instructed to start legal action against New Westminster city council over electrocution of dogs in the city pound. Hughes said the dogs suffer excruciating pain before they die.

Water Restored Soon After Tidal Damage

UCLUELET—Water is expected to be restored to taps of residents in the next few days following a tidal surge this week that damaged underground water mains in the area.

Damage to pipes was inspected by skindiver George Slater. The tidal surge was an after-effect of the Chilean earthquakes.

Most residents of Ucluelet are not without water, however. Many are using wells.

Heart of Nanaimo

Pedestal Holds Giant Salmon

NANAIMO—Two years of work reached a climax in Nanaimo yesterday with the placing of two huge granite salmon on pedestals in the centre of a magnificently designed stone fountain in the heart of the Hub City.

A giant crane placed the salmon, which were cut from five-ton blocks, onto pipes in the centre of the fountain bowl.

The scene was a thrill to George Norris who designed and moulded the fish. Albert Venuti who carved the chiselled statues, and Jules Mangano, chairman of the committee that undertook the project.

ITALIANS' PROJECT The entire fountain with its pathways, which will soon be graced by trees and plants, was the centennial undertaking of the Italian section of Nanaimo community.

One of the most interested spectators at the fountain yesterday was Mayor Pete Maffeo who has taken a personal pride in seeing the job progress from month to month.

"Where else but Nanaimo do you need a crane, line and hook to catch a Sockeye salmon," he remarked.

MOSAIC WORK The fountain with the water spraying up around the fish will be completed when mosaic work lines the basin. The mosaic is now being cut in Mexico and will be supervised by the designer, David Denbigh.

Actual present weight of the fish, put in place today, is known only to Mayor Maffeo. One fish is eight feet long, the other eight feet, six inches. They represent the male and female Sockeye in spawning season.

Meets Bennett

LONDON (CP)—Premier Bennett of British Columbia and his advisers yesterday had an informal luncheon with executive members of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain.

A spokesman said the group had "a free exchange of ideas."

B.C.'s Own Saloon

Drink On House Will Be a Coffee

Tenders were opened here yesterday for construction of B.C.'s first, and undoubtedly last, government saloon.

But although it will be a replica of an actual house of wassail which flourished during the gold rush era at historic Barkerville, its bar will serve nothing stronger than coffee.

An official of the department of recreation and conservation said yesterday that contracts for the Wake-Up-Jake Coffee Saloon and a Barkerville provincial museum will be let in about a week.

The two buildings are part of a government-financed program designed to restore the historic interior ghost town as a tourist attraction.

Low bid on the museum was submitted by Howe Construction Co. Ltd., Burnaby, at $44,848.

Duncan Firm Wins Project

DUNCAN—A city builder has been awarded the contract to build the Duncan Kiwanis Village for elderly citizens, possibly starting next month.

Directors awarded it to William Burak & Co. with a tender of $54,930—one of six received.

Three were higher and two lower, but the directors passed a motion "that in view of the small difference between local and outside tenders, be it resolved that local tender be accepted to create employment for local residents."

It was the lowest of three local tenders.

NANAIMO—This is the tale of a tree that wouldn't die.

The experts said not many years ago that it was probably extinct. They said the tree grew on Vancouver Island many years ago—perhaps more than 15,000,000 years ago—but it was gone now.

Cliff Williams knew they were in plentiful supply on Vancouver Island around the Ladysmith area, because he is a fossil hunter and he had fossils of the little tree at home to prove it.

NETA SEQUOIA

The tree is called Neta Sequoia, a dwarfed version of the Redwood in California. Mr. Williams had gone searching for fossils and found a fossil of the Neta Sequoia. It was identified last year by a group of botanists on a tour of the island. They said the fossil was probably 15 to 20,000,000 years old.

FOUND TREE

Mr. Williams thought that it was the closest he would come to seeing the tree and then he discovered there was one growing in the Comox Logging Co. garden at Ladysmith. It seems that a few years ago a small forest of the trees was found in China.

A cutting was obtained and planted on Vancouver Island. Now, it's six feet tall and that's not all. Mr. Williams obtained a cutting from the new tree and planted it in his garden and says he "it's flourishing just fine."

JOIN HANDS

Now the old and the new has joined hands—a fossil going back 15,000,000 years ago when the island was young and the one in the garden just a few years old.

This week Mr. Williams found another fossil of the Neta Sequoia in the Ladysmith area, in an area that once held plant life growing adjacent to lagoons, and the branches of leaves got covered up with silt, the oxygen closed off and they were preserved.

BUILT UP, DOWN

"This ground has been built up and down, coming above and below water several times. It is now above and being eroded, hence the find," he said.

Besides this recent find, Mr. Williams displays many fossils from different ages of the past in his North Oyster home—a giant clam weighing 50 pounds, a small clam the size of a matchhead, Indian tools dating back several thousand years.

But his proudest exhibit is the "tree that wouldn't die," the one in the garden, and the one in the fossil.

Church Seeks Anti-Bias Law

LONDON (AP)—The Church of England, in a booklet published Wednesday, called for a British law against racial discrimination. The booklet said, "We have fortunately no set patterns of discrimination in this country, and many people are puzzled and hesitant in their reaction to their colored neighbors."

PARIS (Reuters)—A 20-nation working party is to start work next week on detailed plans for an "Atlantic economic organization" and report in time for a ministerial meeting July 31.

The 20 are the 18 members of the Organization for European Economic Co-operation plus the U.S. and Canada.

Skilled Loggers Scarce

Jobless Totals Drop in Duncan

DUNCAN—Employment continued to improve during the last month with the number of jobless dropping by 20 per cent.

Total registered at the National Employment Office dropped from 874 to 706, with logging operations reopening after snow closures.

"Heavy snowfall has caused considerable hardship in this industry during the past few months," R. S. Robinson, local NES manager, said. "Workers have been subject to constant layoffs."

Police, Fire Pay Disputes

Arbitration by Judge City Plan to UBCM

Arbitration by a judge or a board headed by a judge in future wage disputes with policemen and firemen will be sought through the Union of B.C. Municipalities by city council.

This year, a three-man conciliation board gave city police and firemen an 11-per cent wage increase in a majority award which is binding under terms of the Municipal Act. The award increased council opposition to this conciliation board system.

Although Ald. Elmer McEwen urged that council return to man-to-man negotiation with employees instead, council approved an inter-municipal committee recommendation that UBCM action be sought with a view to securing the arbitration-board system.

Its resolution held that conciliation boards were designed only to conciliate, that arbitration board decisions would be based on fairness rather than compromise, and that a judge would be best able to relate fairness to the facts in evidence.

It proposed seeking provision for appointment of arbitration boards headed by a judge or county court judge, or for arbitration by judges, or for establishment of permanent boards headed by judges for separate areas of the province.

Scott Gives Council Unrequested Encore

Second-hand dealer William Scott caused another scene in city council yesterday.

This time he didn't sing gems from "The Mikado," as he did at the last meeting when he wanted to discuss with council his claims that he was falsely arrested and that the city prosecutor and city solicitor shouldn't be the same person.

But one of the results was the same: a constable was called to eject him if deemed necessary.

This time he appeared in connection with a letter addressed to the mayor and aldermen by J. P. Kibsgaard, concerning police actions, which wasn't on the agenda because city clerk M. F. Hunter had suggested it be redirected to the police chief or commission.

Almost as soon as Mr. Scott rose to ask for information, Mayor Percy Scudrah told him, "Now, Mr. Scott, we don't want to listen to you."

When his own brief of the previous week was read, received and filed later in the meeting, after Ald. Arthur Dowell had observed that Mr. Scott's only recourse apparently would be against the man who arrested him, he demanded, "Lay a charge against the Queen?"

Parksville Beauties Parade In Third Annual Show July 9

PARKSVILLE—July 9 has been tentatively chosen as the date for Parksville's third annual Miss Parksville beauty contest. An application has been filed for the renewal of the franchise to enter the winning contestant in the province-wide PNE contest.

The franchise was won for Parksville during centennial year when the beauty contest was inaugurated.

A recently formed beauty contest committee includes

Anton Kruyt, Sam Gough, Mrs. Norman White, Mrs. H. Bone, Miss Sheilagh Henstock, last year's Miss Parksville, and Mrs. W. J. Roscow.

To comply with PNE rules all entries must be 17 years of age or over on Aug. 29 and must not be 22 by Dec. 1, 1960.

Getting Their Heads Together

Meeting of minds on New York Polo Grounds turf came when Frank Haydock, right, of Manchester United, and Bob Blackwood of Hearts.

25,000 for Soccer Classic?

More than 20,000 people are expected at Vancouver's Empire Stadium tomorrow night, and if it should turn out to be a warm, clear evening, some hopes are being held for a new Canadian attendance record for soccer football.

The occasion is the clash between Hearts of Midlothian, Scotland's Division 1 champions, and storied Manchester United.

It's a soccer classic in the true sense of the word and interest is tremendous reports Dave Fryatt, chairman of the B.C. Football Association Commission. "Our advance sale is encouraging," Fryatt said last night, "and if the weather is right we should have more than 20,000 fans. In fact, I think we would have a chance for an all-time Canadian soccer turnout."

Largest crowd to watch a soccer game in Canada was at Toronto in 1952, when 25,000 showed up for the match between Tottenham Hotspur and Manchester United.

greater but for the tragic Munich air disaster of two years ago. In that crash, eight United players were killed and two others so seriously injured they have never played since. The club's trainer, coach and secretary were also killed and Busby lingered between life and death for weeks before recovering.

CARRIED ON

The remnants carried on and amazingly reached the Cup final that year, losing 2-0, to Bolton.

This season, United finished seventh with 45 points and with 102 goals ranked only below Wolverhampton (106) on attack.

United, playing for the first time ever in Vancouver, are not taking the game against Hearts lightly. Joining the club for tomorrow's game are regulars Bobby Charlton, Dennis Viollet and Maurice Setters, who have been on the European tour with England's international team. They were flown to Vancouver from Europe.

Crash survivor Setters, a right-half formerly with West Bromwich, was signed only last January. The fee was 30,000 pounds. Viollet, a survivor of the Munich crash, is one of the highest-scoring centre-forwards in England and Charlton, inside left, shows 12 goals for his 14 international appearances with England.

Inside-right Albert Quixall is another of United's top "name" players. The inside-right cost United $45,000, the second highest transfer fee paid by an English club, when he was obtained from Sheffield Wednesday in 1958.

SIX INTERNATIONALS Altogether, six United players have played for English international sides, goalkeeper Harry Gregg has played 18 times for Ireland, left-back Joe Carolan played for Eire last November and forward Ken Morgan has twice played for Wales.

Hearts have five players who have been capped by Scotland, one who played for an English international team. Game time Saturday is 8.30. Tickets may be obtained at Hicks Ticket Bureau, 610 Dunsun Street, Vancouver, until 5 p.m. They will be on sale at Empire Stadium starting at 7 p.m.

HERE JUNE 6 Hearts will make two more B.C. appearances. They will meet the B.C. All-Stars, whom they defeated, 4-1, in 1958, at Empire Stadium on Saturday, June 4.

Then, on Monday, June 6, they will meet at all-star Victoria side at Royal Athletic Park. Tickets for this game are now on sale at 1231 Government Street.

San Francisco Mound Corps Keeps Giants Well in Front

Orlando Cepeda and the three Willies—Mays, McCovey and Kirkland—gave them one of the most feared batting orders in the major leagues but San Francisco Giants are going places this season with some of the finest pitching seen in many a day.

Sam Jones, Mike McCormick, Jack Sanford and Johnny Antonelli, with some help along the way from Billy O'Dell, have been only slightly short of sensational so far this season.

Yesterday, it was Sanford's turn. The fast-balling right-hander checked in with a four-hit shutout and got some late-inning batting support from his big guns for a 9-0 win over Philadelphia's hapless Phillies.

The Giants are averaging more than 20 runs a game and have had route-go-ing performances in exactly half their first 36 games, an almost unheard-of performance in this day of jittery managers and stress on bullpen strength.

Giants pitchers have given up only 251 hits in 328 innings and the staff earned-run average is about 2.65, excellent for an all-star pitcher and amazing for a whole pitching staff.

The Phillies have been blanked four times and have only scored three runs in 53 innings while losing six in a row to the National League leaders.

Cepeda batted in four runs, two with his eighth homer, and Mays hit a three-run homer in the ninth as the Giants wound up with a five-run outburst which made it seem easier than it was.

Hanging close Meanwhile, Milwaukee Braves, somewhat overlooked but hanging closer to the pace than most realize—they have lost exactly the same number of games as the Giants—knocked off St. Louis Cardinals, 4-1. Bob Buhl struck out nine as Hank Aaron led a 12-hit attack.

Three games tightened up the five-club American League scrap a bit more as the fourth-place New York Yankees topped Baltimore Orioles out of first place and Chicago White Sox ended a four-game losing streak to get within a half game of the lead.

Whitely Ford went the distance for the first time this season as he blanked the Orioles, 2-0, on three hits.

FIRST DEFEAT The White Sox, in outscoring Kansas City Athletics, 3-1, handed Dick Hall his first defeat after four wins. A two-run homer by Dick Brown and a run-scoring triple by Minnie Minoso sank Hall as the Athletics got only five hits off Bob Shaw and Turk Lown.

VIEWSON SPORT

By Red Smith

Baseball fans chuckled indulgently last year when the Yankees got off to a floundering start. In saloons, the art of conversation boomed. "Hey, Mac," a stranger would say, "think the Yankees will clinch the pennant by Mother's Day?" Some beautiful friendships started that way, but the target date passed and the furrows deepened in C. D. Stengel's throbbing brow.

It was Father's Day before New York had a shot at first place. The Yankees could have taken the lead by winning a double-header that Sunday. Instead they lost twice. They never got so close again.

Now another June approaches and filial America prepares to salute its potent males. This is the time of year when form starts to assert itself in the big leagues and a fellow can begin to believe what he sees in the team standings. What he sees today is mildly surprising in several instances, but there's nothing incredible there.

Pittsburgh battling for first place, Baltimore near first, and Los Angeles in fifth are all unexpected. Otherwise the arrangement is just about what the blueprints called for. It is significant that the professionals are taking the Pirates seriously now and many who rated them highly a year ago are a mite ashamed of themselves for getting touted off after the fourth-place finish of 1959. They're ready to make a battle of it all the way," says Bill Rigney, whose Giants are parties to the fight.

They're Hitting Like Men Last season the Pirates played pennant-winning ball at home but couldn't get arrested on the road. This year they're hitting like men, with operatives like Bob Friend and Bill Mazeroski back on their game.

Though the Giants have been dragging their feet occasionally since quitting Candlestick Park, they still look like logical favorites. In San Francisco they won on superior pitching, possibly aided by the prevailing winds which oppose right-handed hitters. Some days their attack falls far short of its potential, but the frightening power is still there.

Charley Dresen is rating the Braves in a "forwardly position," as the chart-callers say. No doubt he is conserving some of his intellectual powers for the big drive later on. Walter Alston is saving nothing, even employing Don Drysdale in relief, but only Frank Howard is hitting for Los Angeles.

In the past Baltimore has been distinguished for agile fielding, sharp pitching, and a loathsome gentility at the plate. The current Orioles have been attacking like logger-head shrikes, and the team is last in the fielding averages. They've made more errors than anybody else in the league, but they get the big inning one day and big pitching the next.

Different than Last Year Still doing it the hard way, the White Sox have managed to cling to first place much of the time, even though this frequently demands a rally in the ninth. There's been one major departure, though, from last year's design for living. Ted Kluszewski is hitting .422, probably the noblest figure registered on Chicago South Side since Shoeless Joe Jackson.

As to the Yankees, there has been no reason thus far to revise estimates made in spring training. They've been flogging the fences like the Yankees of old. Until Bob Cerv arrived from the farm they've had people named Beira playing left field. And the pitching is altogether unreliable. Fourth place seems their proper niche at this stage.

For pure and virtuous adherence to form, nothing could surpass the Senators' last Sunday performance in Chicago. Washington isn't a good team because it has a two-man pitching staff. When Camilo Pascual or Pedro Ramos is pitching, the Senators can best anybody.

Ramos was supposed to pitch the first game of Sunday's double-header but he got skulled by a fungo stick and Pascual took over out of turn. He won, 7 to 5.

Back from the hospital with a knot on his intellect but no kinks in his arm, Ramos worked the second game. He won, 3 to 2.

If there's anybody still unconvinced that form is taking over, let him note the positions of the Phillies and Red Sox.

Rookie Goalie Hot In New Westminster

NEW WESTMINSTER—Excellent goalkeeping by a rookie making his first Inter-City A-crosse start and a fine team display carried New Westminster to a 15-8 win over Vancouver here Thursday night to tighten the race.

Result: left New Westminster and Vancouver tied for second place, only one point behind Nanaimo in what is developing into a three-team fight for the league title, held by the New Westminster club.

Pressed into service when sophomore Les Norman suffered a cut ear in the pre-game warmup, Marv Schweitzer blocked 26 shots, including 14 of 15 in the first half, when the defending champions grabbed a 6-1 lead.

Norman was ready for second half action but New Westminster coach Jake Proctor decided to let Schweitzer finish the job. He slumped just a bit in the third quarter but his club never lost control.

Cliff Sepka and Ivan Stewart led the winners with three goals each but 11 different players scored goals and everyone in the starting lineup except Schweitzer and Bud Loftus got at least one point.

Two More Records Broken by Jumpers

Two more new records were set yesterday, making it five for the meet to date, as field events were completed in the annual Greater Victoria High Schools track and field meet.

The event will be completed at the Victoria High School grounds today with the running of the track events. Action is scheduled to start at approximately 1.15 p.m.

Broken yesterday were the old highs for the senior girls' high jump and the junior boys' broad jump. No one even came close to existing records in the other five events completed yesterday.

Eleanor Whitehead of Esquimalt, one of the favorites for the senior girls' individual championship, smashed the high jump mark with a leap of four feet nine inches. The old high of three feet seven and a quarter inches was set in 1958 by A. McKechnie of Oak Bay.

Alvin Lowe of Vic High made a fine leap of 19 feet, one-quarter inch for the new broad jump record. It beat by more than an inch the former mark of 18 feet, 11 inches, set only last year by Bob Van Pelt of Mount View.

And Lowe's leap was five and a quarter inches longer than the 18 feet, seven inches which was good enough to win the senior boys' broad jump for T. Smith of Oak Bay on Wednesday.

VIC PULLS AWAY Favored Vic High continued to pull away from stubbornly contesting Oak Bay for the team championship. Vic High won five of yesterday's seven events while Oak Bay won the other two and had four second-place and one third place.

Going into the track events Vic High had a team total of 63 1/2 points. Oak Bay had 48 points, Esquimalt 25 1/2, Mount View 25 and Mt. Douglas 19 1/2.

Individually, Albert Wolters of Vic High had the best record. He won the boys' open hop, step and jump yesterday to add to his Wednesday win in the pole vault and a third place in the broad jump and leads the senior boys with 12 points.

MAYOR'S VETO WILL STALL 'SECRECY' BYLAW 30 DAYS

MAYOR SCURRAH

Lists Name Sellers Of Sweep Tickets

EDMONTON (UPI) — An investigation into sweepstake ticket sales in western Canada loomed today following police seizure of records on western ticket sellers.

Inspector C. W. McNichol said the names of all ticket sellers in the four western provinces were seized in a raid. The evidence will go to the RCMP.

Police arrested George Finlayson, 63, who was fined $100 and costs on a charge of distributing lottery tickets.

Legality Questioned Over First Reading

By R. O. MARRION

City council yesterday gave final approval to a bylaw to exclude reporters from committee meetings except by invitation, but Mayor Percy Scurrah promptly used his power of veto for the first time.

Result is that the "secrecy" bylaw must be reconsidered by council after 30 days, unless, in the meantime, council receives and accepts advice that the bylaw wrongly got past first reading two weeks ago.

The bylaw received final approval, 5-4, when Ald. Elmer McEwen neither voted nor withdrew. Not voting is taken as an affirmative vote.

SECRECY DENIED
Chief proponent of the bylaw at the meeting was Ald. Rev. J. L. W. McLean, who denied secrecy or censorship were involved.

The bylaw, he said, would give committees power "to regulate publicity" that ill-timed and perhaps ill-considered publicity would not prejudice city business. It would not mean suppression of news of business done at the council level.

BAR REPORTERS
The bylaw would change an existing provision that reporters can be barred from committee meetings by majority vote, and Ald. Geoffrey Edgell opened debate by suggesting that the new rule would only embarrass reporters by requiring them to stand waiting for an invitation.

Ald. Arthur Dowell noted that five aldermen had been members of a previous regime and knew exactly what had happened when the press was barred from committee meetings then. (Ald. M. H. Mooney was the only alderman above the centre-line of council seniority who voted for the new bylaw.)

POOR RELATIONS
Public relations between city hall and the public, Ald. Dowell said, had reached a very low ebb, and "since you have been in the chair, Mr. Mayor, relations with the papers and the public have never been at such a high level."

"Certainly they won't be kept at that level if we go into secret, for want of a better word, committee meetings."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay, however, saw an implication that council meeting reporting would leave much to be desired if the press were excluded from committee meetings. He liked to think, he said, that the press would still report council meetings properly.

'SIAMESE TWIN'
Ald. McLean was confident, he said, that the bylaw wouldn't disturb good relations with the press at all. But he was interested in the similarity of editorial reaction

Bulletin

ISTANBUL (AP) — Turkish armed forces took over the country early today in what was described as a bloodless coup d'etat.

The military issued an announcement promising that free elections would be held and that power would be turned over to the winner.

The seizure of power followed weeks of demonstrations against the strong-arm rule of Premier Menekes.

In Victoria's "Siamese twin" newspapers, he said, and while he conceded that editors had a right to express their views in editorials—even to refer to secrecy and censorship—he asserted that news stories on the bylaw had been slanted and colored, and cited some reports.

CLOAK AND DAGGER
The public, he suggested, would receive a cloak and dagger impression of council's move, and "I am interested because the interpretation is so much at variance with the actual facts."

One of the items he referred to was a Colonist story indicating what the results would be if only the minutes of a council meeting were available to the press, and this, he said, referring to a council and not a committee meeting, was clever writing but an example of slanted, distorted, colored reporting giving the public an erroneous impression.

BREAD AND BUTTER

Ald. McLean suggested that the reason the press wanted to keep the right to attend committee meetings was not truly to represent the public in scrutinizing city business, but "because they see it could restrict the number and kind of personal-interest stories concerning individual aldermen."

Newspapermen existed to sell newspapers, he said, and such stories had no significance in relation to the welfare of the citizens and were all part of the reporters' bread and butter.

BEST DO WORK
But the aldermen must consider how they could best do the work of the city in the interests of all the people.

Ald. Mooney made most of his remarks about the bylaw earlier in the meeting, in reply to a letter from the Victoria Ratepayers' Association denouncing the "secrecy bylaw."

He maintained the bylaw would not mean secrecy in public business because business was not done at committee level. (At yesterday's meeting council gave his committee power to make decisions on allowing a circus to be held in Victoria West Park and on allowing the Mount Douglas

'U.S. Policies Placing Man on War's Brink'

Gromyko Hits Back

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Russia's charge of spy-aggression against the United States was knocked down in the United Nations Security Council Thursday. Then Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko lashed back with a charge that U.S. policies are placing "mankind on the brink of war."

The 11-member council voted 7-4-2 against the Soviet contention that U.S. U-2 spy flights over Russia constituted aggression. Two countries—Tunisia and Ceylon—abstained.

TONE CHARGES

Earlier Thursday, Gromyko's references to Eisenhower's speech were comparatively mild but he unleashed a full-scale attack later, apparently after receiving instructions from Moscow.

Gromyko was speaking on a compromise resolution introduced by smaller countries—dubbed the "Little Four"—asking the Big Four to resume negotiations on disarmament and other topics listed for consideration at the summit.

Orchestra May Fold

SEATTLE (AP) — A contract dispute which could cause the Seattle Symphony Orchestra to cancel its 1960-61 season, was due to come to a head Thursday.

Chile Toll May Hit 5,000

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The death toll for south Chile's six-day siege of earthquakes, tidal waves, avalanches and volcanic eruptions may reach 5,000 government sources said Thursday. (See page 3.)

Officially confirmed figures thus far show 2,829 dead and missing. But with scores of communities still cut off officials said a final count cannot be made for weeks.

Chinese Say Payola Only Way to Canada

TORONTO (UPI) — The Royal Canadian Mounted Police plan to check into charges by Chinese community leaders that there is a form of payola operating on the mine official level at Canada's immigration office in Hong Kong.

Officials of the RCMP criminal investigation branch said they would question the two Chinese who made the charges. William C. Wong, Chinese Community Association chairman, attacked corruption in the Canadian immigration office at Hong Kong.

SPCA Hits Electrocution

NEW WESTMINSTER, (CP) — Ton Hughes, SPCA secretary, said the association's solicitor has been instructed to start legal action against New Westminster city council over electrocution of dogs in the city pound. Hughes said the dogs suffer excruciating pain before they die.

U.S. Plywood Output Cut

SEATTLE (AP) — Fifty-eight Pacific Northwest plywood plants will cut production in the next two weeks.

The shutdowns, which affect plants from the Canadian border to northern California, stem from a recent drop in plywood prices. The price dipped earlier this week to $60 a thousand square feet for quarter-inch, sanded-on-one-side stock.

a number of friends of mine read it over and said, "this is for me."

They gazed at the 21-day tapering off period and they said "this makes sense. I've tried to quit suddenly and I can't do it."

So now some of them have slipped after quitting only six days ago and it is pretty funny what they are saying.

I ran into one of them just an hour ago. He was smoking. "You know," he said, "that business of trying to taper off, these things doesn't work at all. It is just prolonged torture."

'THIS IS IT'

"The only way to quit smoking is just to quit suddenly."

"Is that right?" I said. "You bet," he went on. "you've just got to tell yourself 'this is it, pal, this is the end.'"

"This is very interesting," I answered. "why DON'T you just tell yourself 'this is it, pal, this is the end.'"

"Oh, I'm going to all right," he said, not batting an eye,

"but I've got to get this Arthur King business out of my system first."

So I asked him how many cartons it would take him to get Arthur King out of his system and he said, "Well, summer vacation is coming pretty soon and I would not like to spoil it for the family by me quitting smoking, so I guess I'll wait until after that."

"Yes," I said, "I guess you'll have to wait until after that all right, but try not to spoil Christmas."

So much for the weak of will.

STILL ON CURE

But some people who are still on the cure are pretty funny, too.

Yesterday I saw one of them light 10 cigarettes at one time and then stub them out one by one without inhaling so much as a single puff of smoke. He won a $5 bet from me.

That wasn't so funny, but what was funny was that I gave him a cheque to cover the bet. It was a funny cheque.
